Sen. Taft Meets Many at Conferences in Fayette County

SEN. ROBERT A. TAFT, surrounded by a group of Republican leaders of Fayette County goes to dinner in banquet room of Washington Hotel Thursday evening as guest of the county Republican committee. Shown in the group at the left is Walter Sollars, central committee chairman, and County Recorder Frank Whiteside, while at right are Prosecutor Clark Wickensimer (behind the senator) and Judge Rell G. Allen.

In plain-spoken frank statements and in answers to numerous questions Senator Robert A. Taft made his position clear on many controversial subjects to scores of Fayette County people who met him in this city Wednesday.

In his present swing through Ohio counties the senior senator from Ohio while here talked to half a dozen different groups on a wide variety of subjects, stating that he wanted to "feel the pulse of the people back home" and could do so only through direct contact. He said he wanted to hear their questions and would answer them to the best of his ability.

From four o'clock Wednesday afternoon until 10 P. M. he was almost constantly in touch with representative individuals engaged in many different activities, agricultural, industrial, educational and professional.

Throughout the senator's talks here there ran his frequent emphasis of opposition to totalitarian and socialistic theories of government which he declared, are developing rapidly under bureaus, boards and commissions down in Washington D. C.

He deplored the growing danger of pressure groups seeking to have the federal government take care of their home responsibilities and spoke repeatedly of the grave danger of an insidious effort to promote the so-called "welfare state" idea which, in due time, would take local problems out of the hands of the people and place them under bureaucratic control through which alleged "experts" would tell the people what they should do.

Public Apathy A Danger

"The sugar-coated and attractive promises of this theory offer vote-catching plans which can easily lull an unsuspecting public into an apathetic state that will permit substitution of complete government control for individual liberty", he stated, and continued "this threatens to check the individual ambition, thrift and initiative which has made this country strong and self-reliant. We now find coming to our door pleas for aid, and more aid, from nations which have tried dictatorship or socialistic ideas and have found them failures. They have discovered that their main hope lies in help from us, a nation which has maintained freedom for the individual".

Four Sentenced On Guilty Pleas; One Faces Trial

Dowler Still Held For Manslaughter After Street Fight

Four check workers were sentenced to state prison when arraigned before Judge H. M. Rankin in common pleas court Thursday morning on indictments returned against them by the Fayette County grand jury Monday of this week.

Sentence was pronounced after Judge Rankin impressed upon them the seriousness of the offense of check writing. He sharply criticized the practice of some justices of the peace in dismissing charges after arrangements have been made to pay off checks issued without funds.

At the same session of court, Clarence Wallace Dowler, indicted on a first degree manslaughter charge growing out of the death of Elmo Bennett following a blow struck by Dowler, entered a plea of innocent and his bond was fixed at $5,000. Charles S. Hire represents Dowler.

Ex-New Dealer Selected for Supreme Court

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15—(AP)—President Truman today selected Federal Circuit Judge Sherman Minton, former Indiana new deal senator, as a supreme court justice to succeed the late Wiley Rutledge.

The president said Minton, who served with him in the Senate, will be the new justice when the Senate confirms him. It will be Mr. Truman's fourth appointment to the nine-member court.

The announcement was made at a new conference. It came as somewhat of a surprise since the 58-year-old Indianan's name had not figured in the speculation until a few hours earlier.

Mr. Truman said he will name (Please turn to Page Two)

Price Support Endangered by Bumper Harvest

Program Designed To Prevent Break In Farm Income

CHICAGO, Sept. 15—(AP)—The government today is supporting the price of dozens of different commodities—all the way from apricots through hairy vetch to wool.

The program is designed to prevent a disastrous break in farm prices. For many of the commodities, the Agriculture Department is required by law to make support loans, purchases or purchase agreements. For some it is not so required.

The extent of the program is without parallel in American history. With the coming of the autumn harvest some trade sources believe there is a real possibility the government support level will crack on some commodities.

Here are some of the farm products which the government is supporting, or has announced its intention to support:

BARLEY—Supported at $1.09 a bushel, equal to 72 percent of parity, by purchase agreements and loans. There are now 7,363,755 bushels from this year's crop under loan. Last year 49,153,804 bushels were given support. This is not a crop the Agriculture Department must support under law. Hence, it's part of the non-mandatory program.

BEANS—Will be supported at 80 percent of parity by loans and purchases. Actual price supports have not been announced yet. This (Please turn to Page Fourteen)

Income of Farmers Showing Decrease

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15—(AP)—Mid-western farmers made fewer dollars January through July than in the same months last year, the agriculture department reports.

Farm income for the first seven months this year was lower in every mid-western state than for the corresponding 1948 period.

Iowa led the 12-state section, as well as the entire nation, with cash receipts of $1,169,072,000 from farm marketings. This was a drop of $151,822,000 from last year.

Ohio was listed at $490,063,000.

Colored Oleo Foes Raising Fighting Fund

COLUMBUS, Sept. 15—(AP)—Foes of colored oleo are raising a $100,000 war chest to fight the proposal at the November election. Jack Nisbet of Columbus, head of the State Dairy Welfare Committee, said today the money was being solicited from cattle raisers and others in the industry.

The fund is being used to ask electors to vote against the proposal this fall. The question on the ballot will be whether voters want to lift the ban against manufacture and sale of colored oleo in Ohio.

Industry Balks At Proposed Peace Formula

Labor Accepts Plan Of Board as Basis For Negotiations

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 15—(AP)—A nationwide steel strike on Sept. 25 is a distinct possibility.

U. S. Steel Corporation, bellwether of the industry, says it will not accept the presidential fact finding board's steel peace formula without bargaining.

The next move is up to Philip Murray, president of the CIO United Steelworkers.

Murray forced the issue. He told Benjamin F. Fairless, president of U. S. Steel, that he wasn't satisfied with Fairless' initial answer that bargaining be resumed—without committing big steel to the board's findings.

It didn't take Fairless long to reply. Within a few hours he told Murray the labor chief can't dictate U. S. Steel's acceptance of the board's recommendations as a condition to bargaining.

But Fairless reiterated he is perfectly willing to resume negotiations. Murray didn't comment. His aides said they don't know when, or if, he will.

Industry Reaction

In giving U. S. Steel's reaction to the presidential board's report, Fairless made it plain he didn't like many of the recommendations. He was particularly angry at the board's suggestion the industry bear the entire cost of a pension plan.

The board suggested this peace formula:

1. The union should give up demands for a wage increase.
2. Labor and industry should work out company financed pension plans to go into effect next year.
3. The union and company should work out now satisfactory (Please turn to Page Two)

'Taint Funny To Fenshaws

CLEVELAND, Sept. 15—(AP)—It may be funny to the neighbors, but not to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fenshaw.

A practical joker apparently has a dislike to the couple who serve as custodians of the East Side apartment in which they live.

Tuesday night when Fenshaw answered the doorbell, two policemen grabbed him and started to search his clothing. Someone had telephoned the police department Fenshaw had killed his wife.

Since then, there has been no letup. Tow trucks, taxicabs, ambulances, moving vans and coal and ice trucks have been coming to the apartment.

The mysterious phoner also has sent the fire department, the gas company and the electric company.

"I only wish it would stop so we could get some rest," the harassed Mrs. Fenshaw said.

Suspects Nabbed For Ohio Slaying

MARIETTA, Sept. 15—(AP)—Sheriff Wilbert Gorrell of Pleasant County, W. Va., today said he had arrested two persons, one a former convict, for questioning in the slaying of Oscar Francis of Newport, O.

Sheriff Gorrell said the arrests were made at the request of Washington County, Ohio, Sheriff Dean Ellis.

Names of the persons arrested were not disclosed. One is a former convict and the other a relative of the slain man, Gorrell said.

Pool Drive Gets Underway Today

Headquarters Set Up In Loan Office

An intensified wind-up of a campaign to build a swimming pool in Washington C. H. got underway Thursday, when a score of volunteer workers fanned out all over Fayette County to solicit for pool funds.

Meanwhile headquarters for the swimming pool drive was set up Thursday in the First Federal Savings and Loan Association at 134 East Court Street.

Mrs. Fred Rost, who will act as permanent secretary of the drive, will be located at the pool headquarters during the regular hours the loan office is open. The pool headquarters phone is 31061.

Victor Smith, drive chairman, estimated that almost 100 workers will solicit for funds in the county's ten townships. He said at least that many will be needed to handle the solicitations in the city. Smith indicated that several volunteers are needed to assist with the drive and asked all those desiring to help to contact the swimming pool headquarters.

Volunteers will shoot for $20,000 to finish a fund needed to pay (Please turn to Page Two)

End in Sight For Cool Snap

CHICAGO, Sept. 15—(AP)—A batch of warm air from the southwest headed into the mid-west today, ending a mid-September cool snap in many areas.

Temperatures in the 70's and 80's were forecast for some parts of the Rocky Mountain plains states today. The warmer air was expected to extend over most of the north central region by tomorrow.

Early morning temperatures remained below normal today from the Great Lakes region eastward into New York and Pennsylvania. The mercury dropped to below freezing—29—at Cadillac, Mich. Chicago's low was 43.

Generally fair weather was reported across the country.

Earthquake In Borneo

TOKYO, Sept. 15—(AP)—A strong earthquake was recorded on the Tokyo meteorological station seismograph at 4:57 A. M. today (2:57 P. M. EST Wednesday).

The station said the temblor's epicenter was near 116 degrees east longitude and five degrees north latitude. This would be in or near North Borneo.

The monarch butterflies, big orange and black fellows, are on their migratory flight southward, and invariably their flight is the forerunner of much cooler weather.

I saw them Saturday for the first time in their migratory flight this season. Others were following Sunday and again Monday.

The monarchs usually move southward ahead of some much colder temperatures, and I will not be surprised if these temperatures reach the frost mark soon.

Break-up of A & P Food Chain Is Sought

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15—(AP)—Attorney General J. Howard Mc Grath today filed suit to break up the great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company's nationwide food chain.

The civil action was brought in federal district court at New York City this morning.

It is a follow-up to a criminal conviction of the A. and P. Company under the anti-trust statutes at Danville, Illinois, three years ago.

The conviction was affirmed in the U. S. court of appeals at Chicago early this year and the company paid fines totaling $175,000.

The action in New York requests a court order requiring A. and P. to separate its manufacturing and processing business from its buying and selling business and to separate its present seven retail store divisions into seven independently owned retail food chains.

The justice department proposes to dissolve the Atlantic Commission Company, A. and P.'s wholesale purchasing and sales agent in the produce markets.

Parrot Club Closed And Operator Leaves

IRONTON, Sept. 15—(AP)—The operator of the Parrot Club at nearby Proctorville has agreed to close his establishment and Prosecutor Louis Sheridan reportedly leave Ohio, Lawrence County ed yesterday.

The club was the scene of a one-man raid by Rome Township Constable Joe Rigney recently. Rigney said, after the raid, that he had seen slot machines in the club.

Prosecutor Sheridan said he understands Rigney is disinclined to press a charge of shooting with intent to kill against James Tost, operator of the club. Rigney had filed the charge after he reported three shots were fired at him through a door during his raid.

Estranged Wife Shot by Husband

HAMILTON, Sept. 15—(AP)—Lee Gibson, 40, who had been served with divorce suit papers only Tuesday, shot and killed his estranged wife, Margaret, 35, in a Goodwill Industries store here yesterday and then fatally wounded himself.

Three patrons and the acting manager were in the store when the shooting occurred. They dropped behind counters as Gibson opened fire. One bullet went through the ceiling and barely missed a three-year-old child who was playing on the floor of an upstairs apartment.

Believe Gang Broken By 8 Police Arrests

CLEVELAND, Sept. 15—(AP)—Police reported last night they believed they had broken up a burglary gang which has operated in Akron, Youngstown, Dayton, Canton, Toledo, Hamilton and Cleveland. Police said two men were arrested here, four in Akron and two in Youngstown.

Indian Fan on Pole To Stay Up in Air Until Season Ends

CLEVELAND, Sept. 15—(AP)—It looks like Charlie Lupica is going to be up on his flagpole for a total of 124 days.

That would be from May 31, when Charlie climbed the pole to wait for the Cleveland Indians to take first place in the American League, until Oct. 2 when the baseball season ends.

Charlie isn't going to come down from the 20-foot pole on the roof of his confectionery when the Indians are mathematically eliminated from a chance at the flag. That probably will be next week. Charlie said he bargained to stay up there until the Tribe took first or the season ended, and he will stick to his bargain.

"It looks bad, all right," he said this rainy morning, "but as long as there's life, there's hope, they say."

Polio Epidemic Is Now on Decline

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15—(AP)—The nation's polio rate is going down, and the public health service says the epidemic has passed its seasonal peak.

The agency reported a drop in the number of new cases for the third week in a row—from 3,119 in the week ending Sept. 3 to 2,628 in the week ending Sept. 10. The figures do not include Pennsylvania, which has not reported.

Up to last Saturday cases reported for the year (except in Pennsylvania) totaled 26,384, compared with 14,132 during the same period last year.

Polio Doubles 1947

COLUMBUS, Sept. 15—(AP)—Ten new cases of polio were reported to the state health department today, bringing the year's total to 1,222.

The total compared with 697 last year on the same date and 594 in the same 1947 period.

Car Financing 'Gouging' Assailed

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15—(AP)—Automobile industry executives and government officials meet today to draft a fair practices code intended to protect car buyers from price gouges resulting from hidden financing charges.

Lowell B. Mason, acting chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, was to preside at the sessions.

More than a score of sales, manufacturing and financing representatives from automotive companies were invited to give their views on curbing what FTC calls "packed charges" in financing car purchases on the time payment plan.

A spokesman for the commission said FTC's action in calling the meeting was not meant to reflect on the entire motor car industry and its sale practices. But, he said, the agency has received numerous complaints that purchasers have been overcharged from a few dollars to several hundred dollars by hidden financing charges.

From its conference with the automobile officials, FTC hopes to gain voluntary compliance with a code governing future sales of cars on credit.

Under such a set of so-called "fair trade" rules, auto dealers give each car buyer an itemized account of all charges on the purchase of a car. This would include a complete breakdown of the trade-in allowed on an old car; a run-down of insurance costs; the number and cost of all accessories; the whys and wherefores of all financing charges; and the number and amount of monthly payments due on the car.

Chest Budget Group Approves 8 Fund-Raisers

Final O. K. Remains With Directors; Goal To Be Set Next Week

Eight fund-raising organizations were virtually assured of membership in the Community Chest here by being approved unanimously by the red feather's budget committee Wednesday.

Meeting in Committee Chairman Joseph Peters' office at NCR, the budget committee passed favorably on the applications after a thorough review of the findings of the social planning committee.

The applicants approved included the Fayette County Boy Scouts, Fayette County Ministerial Association, Salvation Army, U.S.O., Community Activity Fund, 4-H Clubs Camp, WHS Y-Teens and the Mental Health Association.

The final step is approved by the Chest's board of directors, which will meet early next week.

Members present were Walter Rettig, C. G. Stookey, Floyd Mitchell, Peters, President Robert Brubaker and Executive Secretary Perse Harlow. Absent were Bob Jefferson and Roush Burton.

Harlow said that the goal for the Community Chest campaign will probably be set at the board meeting.

He declined to estimate an amount since the directors have to take into consideration administrative costs before establishing the goal.

The campaign committee, chaired by Maynard Craig, did not meet as planned Wednesday.

A few members were out of town and even one of the newly-appointed division chairmen was unable to meet the time arranged due to previous commitments.

However, a time is being planned for next week to lay plans for coordinating the drives in the four areas set up. These are: business and industrial, rural, residence and special gifts.

Peters took the group on a tour of the NCR plant after the meeting adjourned.

Colored Oleo Fund

(Continued from Page One) will pay for radio and newspaper advertising and a direct letter campaign asking voters to turn down the colored oleo proposal. It was placed on the ballot by petition after the legislature failed to approve it.

Nisbet said dairymen are asked to contribute 25 cents for each cow they own. Washington County dairymen at a meeting in Marietta last night were urged to contribute between $4,000 and $5,000. The county is a dairy cattle leader in the state.

Nisbet said two cattle auctions will be held to raise cash for the drive. Heifers donated from registered and grade stock will be auctioned in Columbus Sept. 24 and in Tiffin Sept. 26. The Columbus auction will be at the Central Ohio Breeding Farm west of town.

Nisbet said the animals were donated by small breeders and are the pick of their herds. Heifers from 71 counties will be auctioned, he said.

Proponents of colored oleo, meanwhile, pushed their own drive. The association of voters for yellow margarine opened campaign headquarters here today at 33 N. High St.

Mrs. Dorothy Clinger of Columbus, secretary of the association, predicted the yellow oleo proposal will carry by a margin of four to one at the polls.

In New York, an A & P official branded the suit as "a threat to the welfare and living standards of every American citizen."

"This is not just an effort to destroy A & P, but an attack on the entire system of efficient low-cost, low-profit, mass distribution which this company pioneered," he said.

"Kib" Retires As B&O Agent

Was At Johnstown, Pa. For 26 Years

R. R. Kibler, former B&O Railroad agent in Washington, C. H. for many years, who has been B&O agent at Johnstown, Pa., since leaving Washington, C. H., will retire Friday of this week and will be succeeded by Homer C. Hiehl. "Kib" as he was familiarly known by a large number of friends in this community, has been employed by the B&O since 1901, and completes his 48th year in the employ of the road.

He went to Johnstown from Washington, C. H. in 1923 and had successfully discharged the duties of the important position since that time, being one of the B&O's most valued agents.

Kibler and Mrs. Kibler expect to retain their home in Johnstown, but are planning some extensive traveling. Following a short visit with friends in Washington, C. H. and New Holland, soon, they will go to California to spend several months.

Kibler is a brother of O. C. (Doc) Kibler, of Good Hope, who retired from B&O employment a few years ago after a long term of service with the company.

United States Steel is willing to pay up to four cents an hour, the amount suggested by the presidential steel board, as its proper share of the cost of proper program for social insurance on a contributory basis arrived at throughout collective bargaining.

Words Not Mined

Fairless minced no words when he flatly declared big steel's unalterable opposition to any pension plan which is financed entirely by industry. He said that, "as a matter of sound principle any program of social insurance should be on a contributory basis."

Then Head of the world's largest steel company said: "At first glance, a cost of 10 cents an hour for social security under the recommended non-contributory program may seem like a small amount. But when applied to the steel industry, the cost of such a non-contributory program would be approximately $200,000,000 a year when operating at full capacity, as in 1948. That would be the equivalent of adding $3 to the cost of each ton of steel produced in the country last year."

Fairless explained carefully that his company is not opposed to the principles of pensions—only that he wants the men who make steel to chip in and help guarantee their own future.

The veteran steelmaker said big steel for many years has had both a pension and a group life insurance plan.

Reserved Seats For Football To Be Up Saturday

Reserved seats for the five home football games of the WHS Lions will be put out on a first-come-first-served basis in the office of the principal of the high school (North Street, entrance) at 8 A. M. Saturday.

The reserved seats this year will be in the new stadium-type concrete grandstand now nearing completion on the south side of the Gardner Park playing field.

Principal Arthur Wohlers, who is in charge of the ticket sale and reserved seats, said he had not yet had a complete report of the sale yet.

Although a good advance sale has been indicated, Prin. Wohlers gave the impression that reserved seats still are available.

Season tickets (with reserved seats) are offered at $10 each this year. Of that amount, $4 is to go toward retiring the indebtedness on the new stand. The stand was financed by the Athletic Board and underwritten by half a dozen sports-minded Lion backers.

There are 756 seats in the new stand. Hope has been expressed that all will be taken to help meet the construction cost.

The stand is virtually completed now. About all that is left to be done before the opening game here Sept. 23 is the laying of the wooden seats over the concrete. That has been started.

negotiator here, Secretary-treasurer John Owens, accused the Southern Association representatives of backing down on an assurance that payments would be continued despite the lack of a written contract.

(Continued from Page One) for the construction costs of a modern pool, to be located in Washington Park. The drive is to end September 30.

More than $50,000 in the swimming pool treasury now, the drive committee reported.

Smith said each donor will be given a receipt for his or her contribution to the pool showing the amount, date of contribution and other information.

Contributions to the pool fund will be tabulated in the swimming pool headquarters and reported to the public.

While the campaign is underway work on the excavation is proceeding at a good clip. The excavation is being donated by the Blue Rock Quarries, Inc.

Materials for the pool have been ordered by the Sever-Williams Company, contractors for the pool construction and plans made to start pouring the footers as soon as the excavation is completed.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

We are glad to announce that we have been fortunate in making arrangements to carry some of that famous old-fashioned PEPPERIDGE FARM BREAD which has been written up in Readers Digest, Time Magazine, The New Yorker, Coronet Magazine and many other periodicals.

These people at PEPPERIDGE FARM make this bread like our grandmothers used to make it each loaf is carefully kneaded by hand—their whole-wheat bread is made of stone-ground flour and their white bread of "unbleached" flour—they add honey for sweetening and fresh whole milk—and they use nothing but sweet-cream table butter for shortening.

We just had our first taste of it right here in our store. It tasted so good, we simply had to order some.

So sure are we that you will like it, we want you to try just one loaf of either variety. If you don't agree with us that it is the best tasting loaf of bread you have ever bought in our store, return the unused portion of the loaf and we will cheerfully refund your money.

Phone in your order now and we will gladly earmark a loaf for you.

Spotlight Remains On Taft-Truman Fight

The visit of Senator Robert A. Taft to this community Wednesday by long odds was the political highlight, locally, for this year so far.

The senior senator from Ohio is not the type of political handshaker and backslapper that appeals to the unthinking voter too often impressed with the veneer, rather than the soundness, of a man in high official position.

Senator Taft is a man who must be listened to and studied before his real statesmanship, ability and integrity are fully appreciated. He is courageous and honest in his opinions even though they may endanger his political future.

With literally scores of newspapers covering every detail of his daily speeches throughout Ohio at this time, he is blazing the trail which will be traversed by most major candidates in the election campaigns of 1950 when the important matter of control of Congress will be decided.

The battle already shaping up is certain to be an epic struggle between the more radical viewpoint of President Truman and his followers and the middle ground adopted by Senator Taft.

Historic domestic issues, scarcely analyzed in the national elections of the past eight years because of overshadowing issues in foreign affairs, are finally coming into the spotlight. They are sure to play a dominant role in the discussions which will arise in almost every American household before voters cast their ballots for the 82nd Congress in November, 1950.

In the coming campaign next year probably no question will be more hotly discussed than the Taft-Hartley law. President Truman has been stubbornly demanding its repeal despite accumulating evidence that it has been an effective measure. Senator Taft has insisted publicly that the rank and file of labor members are afraid of ostracism if they state their real views on the Taft-Hartley measure, and that only professional leadership in labor circles is in violent opposition to the curbs on labor leaders' power as provided in the bill.

Whatever may be the outcome, we are certain to see through the efforts of Senator Taft, a statesmanlike presentation of the grave problems ahead for this nation in the immediate future. What looks like it will become a Taft-Truman fight during 1950 may be the prelude to a campaign in 1952 which may easily have a vital and important bearing on the future welfare of this country regardless of the identity of the leading candidates at that time.

Traffic Fines

A midwestern city was having trouble with illegal parking, on days of sports events, on a heavily travelled by-pass bridge which chanced to be near the stadium. Owners of the illegally parked cars, which blocked an important traffic lane on the congested roadway, paid the same one-dollar fine as motorists who might get tickets for parking overtime in a one-hour space.

It is very often true that the fine for illegal parking is the same without regard for whether the violator just parked too long or parked in a forbidden spot where his car was a hazard to the public. Often even the red light crasher and the ignoror of "Stop" signs also pays the same fine as the overtime parker. Is this smart traffic regulation?

Scientists state that there is no reliable way to determine the age of a turtle. Apparently that is one more piece of greatly yearned-for information to be forever denied us.

Helicopters are now to be used to speed up Chicago mail service. Nothing is said about making the mail more worth speeding up, as by the reduction of circulars, duns and solicitations for funds.

Be careful of the guy who begins his conversation with, "It doesn't matter to me, but—"

Clothes Don't Make The Woman

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK — (AP) — A mere male came up today with an answer to what's wrong with the way women dress.

The answer is—women. "They are too dictated to," said Charles Le Maire. "They accept too much dictation as to what they should wear."

Le Maire is in a position to do a little dictating himself. As wardrobe director for Twentieth Century-Fox films, he runs a staff of 200 clothes experts. They have the pleasant chore of fitting lace and fur pretties to girls like Betty Grable, Jeanne Crain, Dorothy McGuire, June Haver and Maureen O'Hara.

But the clothing of film stars is designed to their own personal architecture. This isn't true of the average woman.

Le Maire, a designer himself, said the biggest mistake most women make is to follow blindly the dictates of fashion oracles — or to try to pour herself into a certain type of dress merely because it looked good on a department store mannequin. "A girl shouldn't pay any attention to what she hears of Paris styles," he emphasized. "She should think first of her own shape, and dress to it. If her figure doesn't go with what she wants to wear, then she should change her shape."

Le Maire has only a weary sympathy for girls who think they can achieve a pencil silhouette with a tight corset. "The excess flesh has to go somewhere," he sighed. "It has to go either up or down, forward or backward."

This, he explained, is why there are so many girls around who look like they have either a front or rear bumper.

An advocate of the plunging neckline, Le Maire has no moral objections to falsies but insists he doesn't allow them in the Twentieth Century-Fox studio.

"That I absolutely prohibit. Anything that isn't part of the body — anything that doesn't move with the body — it isn't right."

"But some studios like them," he conceded. "Everybody in their pictures wear them. I know one actress who must have 50 bosoms at home."

No, he didn't care to name her — but fans can rest assured it isn't Grable.

Le Maire designed wardrobes for Broadway musicals and operated his own exclusive dress shop in Manhattan before going West.

He sees fashions today as in a confused state, but believes the trend is toward "an era of quiet elegance."

"Of course," he said, "a girl can quietly be dressed in a red gown."

He personally favors clothing that accents femininity, styles that accent sex through subdued suggestion.

"Flo Ziegfeld used to say he didn't want naked girls on the stage — unless they had something on to make them look naked," smiled the designer.

Le Maire's own favorite dictates:

"No dress is as important to a well-dressed girl as what she has underneath it. The big mistake the average girl makes is she doesn't dress herself for a vogue. She tries to follow a vogue."

"Clothes don't make the woman anyway — they only make her talked about."

No Sensations in Vaughn Case

By George E. Sokolsky

As a citizen, I have been reading all that has appeared about the investigation of General Harry Vaughn, and I must say that I am not impressed. Thus far, he has been accused:

1. Of doing favors; 2. Of being the recipient of about $5,000 from campaign contributors; 3. Of having telephoned to various government departments from the White House, where he has his office as the president's military aide, to try to get favors.

Now, all this would be terrible were it not usual. Under our party system, political strength is built by doing favors. Every senator and representative, even those who are most active in this investigation, seek all the benefits of patronage. I do not defend patronage, nor do I defend those who seek its benefits and denounce others who do the same. That game is worn out.

Also, every party and every candidate for public office collects money, some of it under the table to evade the Hatch Act. Those who say they don't, only mean that what they do is not provable. Senator Henry Cabot Lodge recently proposed that the government in some manner provide campaign expenses, which is a bad idea because then the government would somehow manage to perpetuate itself in office. As bad as collecting campaign contributions is, and as much as it lays the recipient open to suspicion and even corruption, it is better than any way yet proposed, if we are to have a plural party system.

The president of the United States is always the leader of a political party and he sees to it that his party is well-financed. Franklin D. Roosevelt did that with great skill. The Republicans used to sell ambassadorships and similar trifles. The amount that General Vaughn is accused of handling is so pitifully small that it indicates, first, that he is poor at collecting, and secondly, that he was not doing it professionally. Maybe, the $5,000 is all that the committee has discovered, but it is nothing to talk about. If we are to investigate this subject, let us see where every candidate for any office got his money and how much, including the unprovable amounts under the table.

Now, as to the automobile Vaughn got for a lady, that is nothing to get excited about. Who did not get automobiles for friends in days when they were hard to get? It would be interesting to obtain a list of those who got cars as favors. When I first heard that they had the goods on Vaughn, I thought that we were in for a second Teapot Dome or something like that. But an automobile and some wood for a race-track!

So they dragged in the name of Costello. I never met this Costello, but if he is in all the things he is said to be in and if he is as powerful as he is said to be, he must be the biggest thing we have in this country. He is said to be the head of the Unione Siciliano (if that's how it's spelled) and the boss of all the slot machines, and he runs all vice and corruption, also Tammany Hall and the mayor of New York and the city of New Orleans and rackets in Los Angeles. And he is said to own hotels, apartment houses, race-tracks, night clubs, theaters, and about everything else. Who is this Costello, anyhow?

The funny thing about it is that most people accused of doing business with him deny that they ever met him. Maybe he is Sir Basil Zaharoff in disguise, or the Aga Khan in an American transmigration. Maybe he is just a guy trying to get by. If he is a criminal, why do not the authorities nab him and do their stuff? If he is not a criminal, why do they drag his name into every case when the evidence runs out? So, until this congressional Committee produces something better than we have yet seen, maybe Harry Truman is right about General Vaughn. Certainly, no exciting evidence has yet been produced which shows that he has done more than play party politics the usual way.

Diet and Health Nervousness Cause Of Stomach Ulcers

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE stomach is so constructed that under ordinary conditions it does not digest itself — a rather marvelous arrangement when you stop to consider that one of its chief functions is the digestion of meat and that its tissues are constantly bathed in fairly strong acids. Why this is so we just do not know.

Sometimes, however, for reasons which are not definitely known, the stomach does begin to eat away at its own walls. The result is the formation of peptic ulcers. There seem to be two favorite locations for these sores, since they most often occur either in the last part of the stomach or the first part of the small bowel.

Occurrence of Ulcer
The occurrence of ulcer is not limited to people of a single age or sex. Apparently ulcers most frequently affect active, tense, and high-strung individuals.

In most cases, ulcers can be treated without operation, but operation is necessary if the ulcer does not heal with medical treatment, if there is danger of its breaking through the bowel wall, or if it already has ruptured.

Operation may also be required if the ulcer interferes with the normal action of the stomach, if there is repeated bleeding, or if there is some associated disturbance of the appendix or gallbladder. Sometimes operation may be the quickest way to bring about healing and may in the long run save the patient time, money, and suffering.

An ulcer of this type causes such symptoms as pain, occurring about one to three hours after meals. The pain is relieved by the taking of food, particularly milk, and an alkaline, such as baking soda. There also may be sickness at the stomach and vomiting in some cases. X-ray examination is important in making the diagnosis.

Medical treatment consists, first of all, in the selection of the correct diet. This diet should contain all of the necessary food parts and should contain no highly-seasoned or irritating foods. It is seldom necessary to cut down on the intake of food to any great extent.

Excessive Acid
The second part of the treatment is the use of alkaline substances or other preparations which will eliminate excessive acid. Drugs which relax spasm or quiet the nervous system also may be employed.

Such mild disturbances as the common cold or infections of the nose and throat would appear to be contributing causes for the recurrence of ulcer symptoms. Hence, in the treatment of ulcer patients, efforts must be made to avoid infections of this type, and infections in the teeth, tonsils, sinuses, and elsewhere in the body should be found and eliminated. The patient should get plenty of rest and should be as free as possible from excessive physical and mental strain.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
H. M.: Is there any way of getting rid of dandruff?
Answer: In the treatment of dandruff, the general health and strength should receive attention. Excessive eating should be avoided. The hair should be washed once a week with warm water and green soap. The night before the hair is washed, an ointment containing salicylic acid and sulphur should be rubbed into the scalp. This should be left in overnight and washed out the next morning.

Sure You Haven't A "Blind Spot"?

As I was driving down Main Street last Saturday, another car swung out right in front of me. It turned out to be Buck Blake. He wasn't going fast. It was just that he had something else on his mind at that particular moment.

Buck's really one of the nicest fellows I've ever known. But, sometimes he gets to day-dreaming on the road. He sort of gets a "blind spot" to what's going on about him!

Now, lots of normally considerate folks have their "blind spots."

It could be anything from day-dreaming while driving a car to humming out loud at the movies. From where I sit, it's mighty important to be on guard against your own "blind spots." The other fellow has a right to his "share of the road," too—whether it's having a taste for a temperate glass of sparkling beer or a desire to listen to some classical music if he wants to.

By NORMAN WALKER
(For James Marlow)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 15—(P)—For 15 years a sore spot has been festering in labor relations on the railroads. It's getting worse all the time.

It's the main reason for the present strike on the big Missouri Pacific Railroad. It's ranking labor dealings on practically every other railroad in the country.

What's it all about? Not wages, nor hours, nor the usual reasons you read every day for strikes or threats of strikes in other industries.

The railroad fuss in simply this: a growing batch of arguments between the operating unions and rail managers over the terms of their contracts.

The unions say some contracts clause means one thing. The managers say it means another. These grievances pile up, unsettled, until one day there is a strike threat.

This has been going on, and getting worse, ever since 1934. Then Congress, as asked by the railroads and rail unions, set up an agency called the National Railroad Adjustment Board. It has panels composed of equal numbers of union and management men, supposed to settle such grievances.

There are four panels, all based at Chicago. All have been getting along okay except one. That one deals with grievances brought by rail operating employees such as engineers, firemen, trainmen, conductors.

Things went bad with the operating workers' panel from the start. Because labor contracts covering these workers are so complicated, it now has a backlog of more than 3,000 grievances. Officials estimate it will take four or five years to settle them. This doesn't leave much room for new ones.

So the unions representing the engineers and other operating employees have just about put a boycott on the Adjustment Board. They won't take their cases there any more.

A few months ago railroad managements and the unions got together to try to clear a way through this blockade. They agreed to set up two more panels to work along with the over-burdened one. The idea was to make prompt settlement of grievances possible.

A good idea — but Congress hasn't appropriated the money yet the new panels into operation.

The unsettled disputes are rattling around until the unions get tired of waiting and call a strike.

A threatened stop in rail service makes a problem for the National Mediation Board. This is a separate agency, charged with helping the carriers and their unions write new contracts without strikes.

These threatened strikes have often caused the White House to name special fact-finding boards to look into the trouble and attempt to avoid a strike. Lately these boards have all recommended the same thing: take the grievances to the Adjustment Board because that's its job.

But, as we've seen, the Adjustment Board is bogged down. The unions are sore about it, and the railroads are facing strikes which they feel are unjustified and unnecessary.

In a number of cases railroads have proposed letting an outsider come in to make a final ruling of pending grievances. That's arbitration.

But the unions don't want that. They say the cases are too complicated for a layman — that the railroad men themselves have to work them out, either through the Adjustment Board once it gets working right, or in collective bargaining.

Swank Restaurant For West Germany

BONN, Germany—(P)—One of Europe's ritziest restaurants is rising here on the green banks of the Rhine just for the new West German parliament. You'll have to get elected to parliament—or know one of its members—to dine in it.

Public and press will be banned —so that the parliamentary deputies can at least get some rest while they are eating," says Manager Paul la Roche. The east side of the restaurant, facing the Rhine, is built entirely of glass. Enconced in green-leather chairs, deputies can gaze across a poplar-studded terrace at the storied Rhine river.

Newsman assigned to cover the new parliament will get a spacious establishment all their own. Several two-story buildings with soundproof rooms are going up near the parliament building just for the press. Newsman also will have a special restaurant for their use.

'Radio Ambush' Being Studied

Air Invasion Route Over North Pole

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
ITHACA, N. Y.—(P)—The chances for a radio ambush to conceal air invasion over the North Pole are under investigation at Cornell University.

This polar ambush is not something man can create at will. It is a natural blackout of radio signals, and sometimes ground wires too, due to magnetic storms. Planes might use this blackout for cover the same as ground troops use fog.

Like the weather, the radio ambush can be predicted. But predictions are not good yet, particularly in the most vulnerable spot. This spot is all the area of North America that lies under the region of the Aurora, or northern lights. That region is from northern Canada south to a line running across the United States from New York, through Pittsburgh, Idaho and the state of Washington.

This auroral cover, 60 to 400 miles up in the sky, extends much farther south over North America than over Europe, possibly to American disadvantage. It is set like a hat pulled far to one side over a man's head.

Under this hat lie the great airways which are expected to be routes of military expeditions of the future, particularly between northern Europe, Siberia and North America.

Aurora and Blackouts
It is known that the aurora is associated with radio blackouts and magnetic storms. But much of the data needed for defense in the vast air reaches is still unknown.

The U. S. signal corps is furnishing the Cornell School of Electrical Engineering, under Dr. Charles R. Burrows, director of the school, with automatic instruments to probe the ionosphere up to 250 miles continuously on a wide variety of radio wave lengths.

The equipment will be operated under the direction of Prof. W. C. Ballard, Jr. Dr. Henry G. Booker is acting as consultant.

In addition Cornell for 10 years has been the main center of study of the northern lights in North America. The auroral studies are by Dr. Carl W. Gartlein, with support of the National Geographic Society. They dovetail with the signal corps work. Dr. Gartlein now is adding to them with a continuous analysis of the light of the night sky.

This will pick up auroras invisible to the eye. The visible northern lights come on the average on one night in ten the year round, and are likely to be most numerous in spring and fall, at the equinoxes. The invisible auroras are still more frequent. They give enough light to be detected by the spectroscopic, the glass prism or metal grating which breaks light into rainbow colors.

Cause of Auroras

Auroras come from the sun. They are caused by impact on the upper atmosphere of atomic-size particles which shoot from the region of sunspots like spray from a hose. It takes these particles about 24 hours to make the trip to earth. As they close in, they are caught in the earth's magnetism and deflected north and south toward the magnetic poles. This confines them to high latitudes.

These northern lights sometimes form a belt clear across North America, with its lower edge well down over the northern border of the United States.

Cornell is one of three colleges studying radio wave propagation and the aurora effects. The

Romantic Atmosphere of Old Days Still Clings to Southwest's Ranches

CHOW TIME—JA cowboys eat noon meal near flap tent, pitched next to the ancient chuck wagon.

By NUGENT E. BROWN
Central Press Correspondent

CLAUDE, Tex.—Down here, in the bid middle of the wheat belt of the southwest, many of the old-time ranches still carry on.

The first big open range ever operated in this high plains area, the John Adair ranch, which produced 300,000 cattle in its first 11 years of history, from 1876 to 1887, still carries on and has never changed ownership from that day to this.

JA ranch headquarters were established in the picturesque Palo Duro canyon by the late pioneer, Charles Goodnight. The headquarters building is still on the same spot.

The only difference is that the acreage of the sprawling ranch has been reduced from the far-flung 1,335,000 acres in the 1880's to its present 330,000.

Today, the famous JA outfit grazes 25 to 30 thousand head of fine Hereford beef cattle. It was the first ranch in the southwest to change from the native Longhorn to the Hereford breed.

Colonel Goodnight formed a partnership with John Adair, an Englishman, back in 1876, for operating of the new ranch in a wild open country, harassed by marauding bands of Indians and cattle thieves.

ADAIR furnished the money and Goodnight established the ranch. In fact, Goodnight, who lived until 1929 when he died at the age of 93, built a modern ranch.

This included 50 houses, large and small, hundreds of miles of roads, 20 or more large water tanks and as many corrals. Goodnight also strung hundreds of miles of wire fence, established a fine hay farm, built a commodious two-story headquarters of large logs.

Today, manager-owner Monte Ritchie, one of the direct heirs of the original owner, John Adair, spends some of his time at the big ranch every summer. He also is a native of England and spends his winters in Switzerland or the British Isles.

Ritchie has a ranch superintendent, W. G. (Bill) Word, who was virtually reared there and has been with the outfit many years. Ritchie, who has a two-motored airplane, flies back and forth to Fort Worth, Kansas City and New York, spending most of his time in those cities.

others are Colgate and Pennsylvania State College. Colgate has been cooperating with Dr. Gartlein for years. It is hoped that a fourth station will be set up at Ottawa, Canada, to complete the chain.

When guided missiles come into use it will be necessary to know how the auroral region affects

HOT IRON DETAIL—JA cowpokes brand one of the year-old heifers.

However, this mighty ranch has much of the old atmosphere of the early days when Colonel Goodnight, a forceful leader, ran it with an iron hand and will.

The old chuck wagon, battered, beaten and worn, is still the mobile home of the JA cowboys from early spring until Thanksgiving. It is even now used seven days a week.

It is a vehicle loaded with the mellow connotations of an age. What tons of coffee have been stored in its spacious depths; how many hundreds of beehives have been swung from its wagon spokes; how many barrels of sourdough have been brewed between its sideboards!

WHEN THE RANCH was started back in 1877 by Colonel Goodnight, who was the first manager, of course, his contract called for an annual salary of $2,500 a year plus one-third of the net profits after all operating expenses had been paid.

His contract was for five years. It ended in 1882. After repaying John Adair all money advanced with 10 per cent interest, they had a clear profit of $542,000. Not a bad income for those times.

Also of much interest as compared to present-day high priced cattle, Colonel Goodnight, in the early '80's, imported 60 registered Hereford bulls to start his new strain of beef cattle.

Those 60 animals cost him $27,000, according to J. Evetts Haley, author of a biography on Goodnight. Haley points out, further, that the ranch after a few years had 2,000 bulls valued at $150,000.

The old mess-house on this ranch is a very large and commodious structure. Near it is a dairy, with all of its modern quick-freeze equipment, where butter is stored in summer in sufficient quantity to last throughout the year.

A short distance away is the poultry yard and houses where the best breeds of fowl are kept and raised. Eggs are supplied by the gross for the residents of the headquarters village. There also is a large garage and blacksmith shop where wagons are mended and horses are shod.

The present JA Ranch has a remuda of about 100 horses, saddle ponies, for the use of the cowboys.

The headquarters ranch home and office and village is about 30 miles from Claude, the nearest town, and about 60 miles by road from Amarillo.

fornia. This project is sponsored by the offices of naval research. It is for learning the effect of radio signals sent out by the sun, by the Milky Way, and by some points in space.

The sun signals were discovered in World War II when they interfered with military radar detection. Cornell's radio telescope is one of the largest instruments in the world built to pick up the sun and star radio.

Every 11 years, during the period of numerous sunspots, the sun causes a maximum of radio and other communications trouble. During minimum sunspots these troubles are much less. The last war was fought in a minimum trouble period, but even so the military commanders recognized the possibility of loss of radio contact and made extensive use of predictions about radio communications.

About 14,000 fires occur annually in the U. S. National forests. Oysters are edible at any time they are gathered, but the idea they should be eaten only in months which have a letter "r" in their name probably goes back to medieval times.

"Light Opera" Is Topic Used At First Fall Meeting Of Cecilians At French Home

The Cecilian Music Club held its first meeting of the season at the spacious home of Mrs. Webber French on Wednesday evening. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Harry G. Craig, president during which she presented Mrs. Ansel Kirkpatrick, Mrs. William Lovell, Miss Betty Mac Pherson, Miss Marian Moore, Mrs. Edwin Wagner and Mrs. Mary Gillispie as new associate members.

An invitation received from the Women's Music Club of Sidney to attend their March meeting and to contribute one number on the program of "American Music" was read and accepted. The members also voted to become co-sponsors with the Washington Organ Club and Washington High School in presenting Wilbur Held, organist and Florence McCracken, soprano soloist in a concert in the high school auditorium on the evening of October 25. Mrs. Thomas Bush presented a request from the Swimming Pool Board for block canvassers. Mrs. John Forsythe spoke of the outstanding features on the club's calendar for the year particularly Mrs. Howard Maurer, soprano, who will be guest artist in a recital at the March meeting.

The subject for the evening was "Light Opera", from which a lovely group of selections had been assembled by the program chairman, Mrs. L. F. Everhart. Mrs. O. D. Farquhar prefaced each number with interesting remarks. She quoted Deems Taylor, in calling our light opera music the best in the world and in his statement that the terms "classical" and "popular" should be abolished, substituting instead, the terms "good music" and "bad music". Second that because some classical music is bad and some popular music, good. All good music is enjoyed by musical people.

The following examples of good vocal music was presented and well received by members "Summer Time"—Gershwin, by Miss Kathleen Davis, "Lover Come Back To Me", (The New Moon)—Romberg, by Mrs. Olive Icenhower.

Three numbers "The Donkey Serenade"—Friml—Shohart, "Are You Free" (Apple Blossom Time)—Jacobi, and "The Desert Song"—(The Desert Song)—Romberg were presented by a sextette made up of Mrs. M. Grove Davis, Mrs. G. B. Vance, Mrs. Olive Icenhower, Mrs. John Rhoads and Mrs. John F. Jefferson. "One Alone"—Romberg by Mr. William Schlichter, guest artist, closed the program. Accompanists were Mrs. Andrew Loudner and Mrs. John E. Rhoads. Under the direction of Mrs. Maurice Hopkins, program chairman for the year. The group studied a recording of the first movement of Brahms' First Symphony.

A social hour followed during which the tea and the accompanying delicacies were served from a beautifully appointed table with Mrs. Harry Craig and Mrs. J. Rankin Paul presiding. Assisting Mrs. Everhart as program chairman for the evening were Miss Kathleen Davis, Mrs. M. Grove Davis, Mrs. O. D. Farquhar, Mrs. Olive Icenhower, Mrs. Fuller Jefferson, Mrs. Andrew Loudner, Mrs. John Rhoads and Mrs. G. B. Vance and hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Robert Moyer, Mrs. Otis B. Core, Mrs. Leonard R. Korn, Miss Marcia Highley and Mrs. Charles Hire.

Beauty and Books Good Combination

By BETTY CLARKE

One good reason for using creams at the end of the summer is dry skin. Whether you go back to school or a job in the fall, skin will need extra-special treatment until it gets back to normal. If it is flaky in patches or looks leathery about eyes and mouth, sun and wind may have dried the natural oils of your skin.

You'll need super-cleansing and mild stimulation to smooth your skin to normal. A little kit containing several super-rich night emollient and cleansing creams is ideal while you are going through your dry-skin session. Super-rich cleanser can absorb accumulated soil without massage. You can apply and remove it with a cleansing tissue, then apply a cooling complexion lotion and a foundation which will impart a new luminous skin beauty for fall.

Young girls do not need frequent slathering with creams. If proper cosmetic preparations are used just when needed, you will not get dependent on them. Soap and water is a good cleanser in the meantime, creams and lotions are good for removing makeup. But super-rich night creams should be used when they are required.

Youngsters enjoy an after-school snack of cream cheese softened and mixed with strawberry preserves, and spread on graham crackers.

The repeating of the closing sentence closed the meeting and during the social hour, delicious refreshments were served by the host.

Mrs. Frank Bennett, Mrs. Howard White, Mrs. Charles Gilmore, Mrs. Florence Jones and Mrs. Tom Harmon, of Circleville were luncheon guests of Mrs. Willard Story Wednesday.

Presby-Weds Honor The Abernethy's At Dinner Meeting

The Presby-Weds of the First Presbyterian Church met Wednesday evening in the church basement with a large attendance of members and guests present.

A bountiful covered dish dinner was served at long tables decorated with fall flowers and white tapers.

A short business meeting was held with Mr. Robert Bishop, president, in charge.

A nominating committee was appointed consisting of Mr. Charles Reinke, Mr. Ray Farley and Mr. Ed Moser who will choose officers for the coming year.

Mr. Walter Rettig, entertainment chairman, introduced the speaker of the evening, Rev. Allan Peterson, whose subject was "Life Movement in the Church."

Rev. Abernethy gave a short talk on the history of the Presby-Weds.

Harriett Lee Holdren Becomes Bride of Jack Day Wednesday

An informal wedding beautiful in its simplicity, on Wednesday, September 14, at the spacious country home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Holdren, near Good Hope, united in marriage their only daughter, Miss Harriett Lee Holdren, to Jack Day, ET3 of the U. S. Navy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Day of Good Hope.

The groom, also a graduate of Good Hope High School in the class of '46, has spent the past two years in the U.S. Navy as an electronics and technician student and will return to his base at Port Hueneme, California, at the end of his leave, where he has one more year of training.

Guests included at the wedding, which included only members of the immediate families were, in addition to the parents of the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Taylor, daughter Cheri, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rodgers, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Taylor, Mrs. Ota Holdren and Mrs. Neil H. Peterson.

Navy blue accessories accented the beige gabardine suit worn by the bride and a single strand of pearls, as her only jewelry, was a gift of the groom. A single hybrid orchid pinned at her shoulder, completed her modish ensemble.

Miss Rodgers chose a grey gabardine suit with which she combined black accessories and her corsage was of red roses.

Mrs. Holdren was wearing a deep blue dress with matching accessories and Mrs. Day was dressed in a gray gabardine suit with black accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of pink carnations.

Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Holdren entertained with a reception, and the bride's table in the dining room, was decorated with asters and sweet peas, with white tapers flanking the two tier wedding cake topped with the traditional bride and groom. Mrs. Robert Rodgers served the cake and Mrs. Everett Taylor presided over the punch bowl.

Later when the new Mr. and Mrs. Day left on a short honeymoon in northern Ohio, the bride was wearing for travelling a navy hat and top coat over her wedding suit and her orchid was pinned at her shoulder.

The bride, a 1946 graduate of Good Hope High School, received her degree in nursing at Christ Hospital, Cincinnati, in August of this year.

The groom, also a graduate of Good Hope High School in the class of '46, has spent the past two years in the U.S. Navy as an electronics and technician student and will return to his base at Port Hueneme, California, at the end of his leave, where he has one more year of training.

Guests included at the wedding, which included only members of the immediate families were, in addition to the parents of the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Taylor, daughter Cheri, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rodgers, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Taylor, Mrs. Ota Holdren and Mrs. Neil H. Peterson.

Riding Club Makes Plans For Fall Events

The Washington Riding Club held its second regular monthly meeting at the country home of Mr. Melvin Williams, preceded by a wiener roast. Families of the members were included as guests.

The constitution was read by Mr. Emmett Backenstoe and adopted. The directors are to be elected at the next meeting. Plans were made for a food sale in the near future and Mrs. J. W. Liso was appointed as chairman. Plans were also made for a dance to be held Halloween evening and the committee in charge is Mr. Bob Wise, Mr. Robert Minshall and Mr. Carl Gorman. The next ride will be October 2 at the Melvin Williams farm. The members are to meet at 10 A. M. and the horses will be transported to the farm. Members of families will join them for a covered dish luncheon. The next regular meeting is to be held at the cottage of Mr. Robert Minshall at Rock Bridge on October 10.

Serve snap beans with a cheese sauce if you want to give your family extra nutrients. To make it a party dish turn the beans and sauce into a casserole, top with buttered crumbs and brown under the broiler or in the oven.

In using unsweetened chocolate in cakes, cookies, or other desserts remember that one square is the equivalent of one ounce.

When using chili sauce wipe the top of the bottle and the inside of the cover with a damp cloth before putting away.

Russells Point Lady Recommends Rennel

"I am taking the time to write and tell you how wonderful I think Rennel really is," writes Mrs. L. M. Neal, Box 495, Russells Point, Ohio. "A few months ago I was so heavy that my weight began to affect my heart and after dieting without success, a friend told me about Rennel. By the time I had taken one bottle I could see a change. Since taking Rennel I have lost 50 lbs., and would certainly recommend it to anyone who is overweight."

Imagine, eat plenty and lose weight with this simple yet effective amazing home recipe. After purchasing a bottle of Rennel from your druggist pour the contents into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill bottle. Take two tablespoonsful twice a day. That's all there is to it. No diets to complicate your meal planning. No expensive vitamins to fortify your system from weakness while going without food for you can eat normally. If the very first bottle doesn't show the simple, easy way to lose pounds of bulky fat and help regain slender, more youthful curves—if reducible excess fat doesn't seem to disappear almost like magic just return the empty bottle to the manufacturer for your money back. Don't be switched to another product, insist on genuine Rennel.

Charlie Chan is coming to the Palace Theater Sunday for a four-day run in "Sky Dragon." It is strictly a thrill story in which death lurks in the clouds and suspense fills the skies. Also on the bill are "Thunder in the Pine," the story of tough men fighting for giant trees and gorgeous women, and another chapter of the Dead End Kids in "Junior G-Men."

Mrs. Gram Hostess To Guild Members

Fifteen members of St. Christina Guild of St. Andrew's Church assembled at the attractive home of Mrs. Henry Gram on Tuesday evening to resume the fall meetings. The president, Mrs. Ellis Bolton presided over the lengthy business session during which Mrs. John Case gave a detailed report of the annual convention of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Diocese of Southern Ohio, held in Columbus at Trinity Church, first of May.

Her report was very complete in details and of much interest to the members. Mrs. Bolton also told of a meeting she attended, held at the country home of Miss Mary Johnston near London, in June, of the women of the Columbus district, which was very concise. Plans were completed for the annual Christmas Bazaar and Mr. Gram, chairman of the Young Men's Brotherhood of St. Andrew's told of the erection of a new Sunday School room to be added to the church under the sponsorship of this society which is to be completed about January 1. The president, Mrs. Bolton, also appointed standing committees for the year. During a social hour, the hostess, assisted by Miss Betty McPherson served dainty refreshments from the dining room table, centered with bouquets of fall flowers, using silver service. Mrs. James Tremlett of Reno, Nevada and Mrs. George Spettigue were included as guests.

Class Holds Regular Meeting

prayer by Mrs. Arthur Schlichter. Mrs. Dorn conducted the lesson review, followed with the songs "Lead Kindly Light," and "Rock of Ages." Prayer closed the worship period. Roll call was responded to by 34 members and the usual reports closed the meeting. Indians Rising To Independence

Two More Tribes End Supervision

By CLARKE BEACH
WASHINGTON—The American Indian has taken another small but important step toward independence and self-sufficiency.

The Interior Department disclosed that it had discontinued government supervision over certain tribal affairs of two Indian tribes--the Saginaw Chippewa of Michigan and the Stockbridge-Munsee of Wisconsin. It was the first harvest from the Indian Reorganization Act of 1934 (IRA), the Indian version of the New Deal, which was designed to make all Indians some day independent, economically and politically.

The IRA set up a plan under which Indians could work their way out of the status of government wards by proving themselves self supporting and capable of self-government. After a period of years they could gain their independence either through a vote of the tribe or by permission of the secretary of interior.

The two tribes were the first to apply for freedom and the first to get it. Many others seem ready for it but can't seem to make up their minds about some matters -- such as whether the new set-up should continue communal tribal ownership of lumber, grazing and other lands and enterprises.

Each of these two tribes contains about 500 Indians. Both are predominantly of mixed blood and are well assimilated in their communities, enjoying the same working and social conditions as other Americans there.

Their new status gives them all the rights and responsibilities of other Americans except that they cannot sell their land without the approval of the secretary of interior. This rule holds in the case of all Indians, but the secretary freely grants his permission if it appears the sale will not lead to the Indian's impoverishment.

Many other Indians are relatively well off and seem ready for complete freedom, such as Menominees of Wisconsin, the Klamaths of Oregon and the Osages of Oklahoma.

But until the final step is taken all the approximately 400,000 American Indians aside from the two tribes are wards of the Federal government. The secretary of the interior must approve all business transactions such as leases and loans.

The bulk of the Indian population is heavily dependent on Uncle Sam for all kinds of welfare, educational and medical assistance. In the 12 months ending last June 30, they cost the government $44,310,314.

The program of the Indian Service for some years has been designed to get the Indians on their feet and off the taxpayers' necks as rapidly as possible. But the government has learned through painful and expensive experience that this cannot be done all at once, despite repeated clamor for just giving the Indian what is coming to him and letting him shift for himself.

That has been tried repeatedly in the history of the republic, and each time the Indian has come back after a generation or so, penniless, disease-ridden and direly in need of public care. When he has been given full rights to his property he has usually dissipated it through his own improvidence and the machinations of white land grabbers.

Now the idea is first to prepare the Indian for freedom: Teach him how to farm, raise cattle, fish, engage in lumbering and get jobs in his community. Educate him, teach him self-government, restore his pride in his race him get used to taking care of and culture, and gradually let himself--learning primarily as much as the white man does about the value of the dollar.

The Indian Service has estimated that about 53,000 Indians are now ready economically and educationally to make the new adjustment. Another 75,000 it says, may be ready in five to 10 years. It sees no chance, however, of turning loose the remainder, more than 250,000 for a great many years.

Six Negro Students Study Europe on Tour

ROME—(P)—A group of six Negro students from the Virginia Union University have completed their first foreign study tour of Europe and north Africa. The group visited Ireland, England, Belgium, France, Luxembourg, Switzerland, Italy and Tunisia. They left the United States June 19.

This first group was a small experimental one; to study the possibility for larger tours in the future. Students participating in the tour will get nine semester hours college credit for the trip. The credit is equivalent to that given to a student satisfactorily completing a full summer session course on the campus.

Bets Help Mining Records Disclose

PERTH, Australia—(P)—When a new policeman goes to Collie he learns one thing: Never arrest a man for betting. Collie is a thriving coal-mining town of 5,000 people, 120 miles south of Perth.

Collie claims the best record of any mining town in Australia, some say in the world. There is little crime, few drunks, a high rate of production and virtually no absenteeism. Many say Collie has this happy record because the betting laws are not enforced.

Says Mayor John P. Gillespie, who also is inspector of mines: "The betting freedom has done no harm to the town, and moral standards are higher than in most towns." Each Saturday about a dozen bookmakers set up their radio receivers and full betting gear in Thorntell Street. About 1000 men sit on boxes in the street and listen to the races, or stand in hotel bars and have an occasional flutter with the books.

University Education Given Czech Workers

PRAGUE—(P)—The Czech government's process of pushing workers and the children of workers ahead for university study opportunity has brought 600 applications from workers for the new term. They can qualify to enter the universities after only one-year preparation. Ordinarily preparation would require several years. Most of the candidates come from the mines, agriculture and technical trades.

Strikers Cheered By Soviet Paper

The Soviet paper "Trud" said the increasing wave of strikes in the capitalist world testifies to the militant activity of the working class. "A characteristic feature of many of the strikes," said the paper, "is not only their bitterness and stubbornness but also the spirit of brotherly international solidarity by which they are permeated."

The paper said the recent strike of the London dockers serves as a "remarkable example" of this. "Trud" said the strike of 24,000 Australian miners is among the larger strikes of recent weeks. "It would be necessary," it said, "to enumerate almost the majority of the countries of the capitalist world in order to give an exhaustive list of the strikes which have been taking place in recent weeks."

Merry Scramble Faces Big Nine

By WILLIAM J. CONWAY
CHICAGO, Sept. 15—(AP)—There will be a battle royal for the Western Conference football title.

Four teams—Michigan, Minnesota, Northwestern and Ohio State—have good chances to come home in front. Purdue can't be counted out either.

Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana don't seem to have as much stuff on the pre-season ball, but they will be in there pitching.

It looks like a merry melee. You may not have to wait long for some answers. Northwestern meets Purdue on Sept. 24; Minnesota faces Northwestern on Oct. 8; Ohio State tackles Minnesota, and Michigan battles Northwestern on Oct. 15; and Michigan engages Minnesota on Oct. 22.

Michigan, the defending champion, starts with a 23-game winning streak—and two big problems. The great 1948 offensive line, with the exception of Center Bob Erben, is gone. Coach Ben Osborne also has to develop a quarterback to take the place of Pete Elliott.

There are plenty of candidates on the squad of 67 that includes 28 veterans. There are a dozen lettermen out for line jobs. They include Capt. Al Wistert, a topflight tackle. Only time and test will answer the quarterback question.

Among the seasoned ball carriers are Chuck Ortmann, Leo Koceski and Walt Teninga at the halves; and Tom Peterson, Dick Kempthorn and Don Dufek at fullback.

Minnesota Line Good
Minnesota will change into the wars behind what many experts consider the best college line in the country. It is big and rugged. Most solid of the solid men are two giants. All-America Tackle Leo Noll and Center Clayton Tonnemaker.

But unless Bernie Bierman comes up with some sleepers, the Gopher halfback will lack the power and punch of the line. Strongest spot will be quarterback, where Jim Malosky, Stan Thiele and Dick Ansonem are available. Bill Bye, a runner of proven ability, will work at left half.

Northwestern seems to have what it takes—34 lettermen from the Rose Bowl squad. Only three regulars will be missing.

Coach Bob Voight's main job will be to develop reserve strength for the line. He has depth for a backfield built around such sure-fire performers as Don Burton at quarterback, Ed Tunniff and Johnny Miller at the halves, and Art Murakowski, the driving All-American fullback.

Ohio State Tough
Ohio State is expected to have its best team since it topped the Big Nine in 1944. The Buckeyes have the advantage of experience. There are 26 lettermen—and 21 seniors on the 65 man squad.

But one of the standouts is a sophomore fullback named Vic Janowicz. Among the talented holdovers are Jerry Krall at halfback and Pandel Savic at quarterback. The line has size and know-how. Coach Wesley Fesler may see his boys go far—as far as the Rose Bowl if they get by Minnesota Oct. 15.

Purdue, hobbled by injuries last year, should do much better. Its hopes are carried by a superior backfield. Veterans include a couple of extraordinary halfbacks—Harry Szulborski, who led the league in ground gained in 1948, and Norbert Adams, who missed two games but still powered his way for 352 yards. Quarterback Bob DeMoss is gone. His successors, Kenny Gorgal and Bob Hartman, can't pass as well but are better all-around players.

Coach Stu Holcomb figures his team will have more strength and depth. He lost one complete line, but has material to build around Angelo Carnaghi, center and cap-

Baby Meets Death In Odd Accident

SANDUSKY, Sept. 15—(AP)—A seven-month-old baby girl was injured fatally yesterday after her mother apparently fainted at the steering wheel.

Mrs. Ray Valentine, 25, of near-by Huron was driving a truck that crashed into a bridge abutment near here. She told deputies the accident resulted when she apparently fainted.

In addition to the baby, Shirley, who was killed, two other sons and Mrs. Valentine were injured.

Count Killed in Crash

ROME, Sept. 15—(AP)—The newspaper Memento-Sera said today that Count Giorgio Cini, killed in an airplane crash at Cannes, was not engaged to marry American film star Merle Oberon. It said he already was married to Countess Madina Arrivabene.

Miss Oberon was on the airfield when Cini's private plane crashed Aug. 31, killing him and his pilot. Her name had been linked romantically with Cini's.

It is thin on seasoned men in spots but it is regarded as about up to the conference average.

Iowa has the backs for a potent attack on the ground. The halfback corps is led by veteran Don Fryauf, Bob Longley and Mearl Neber. Sophomore Bill Reichardt, a battering 200 pounder, is the top choice for fullback.

How the Hawkeyes will fare in the air is a question. Al Di Marco, the star pitcher, has used up his eligibility. Glenn Drahm and Sophomore Fred Ruck are being groomed for the quarterback post. If they can throw, they will have competent catchers in Ends Jack Dittmer and Bob McKenzie. Coach Eddie Anderson's prime chore is to produce an efficient line.

New men bulk large in the battle plan of Illinois. Coach Ray Eliot has 21 lettermen, but will have to draw much of his team's strength from sophomores. His chief problem is developing a fast-charging line to clear the way for a set of fast backs.

The Illini are strong down the middle. They have veterans Sam Levanti and Bill Vohaska at center; Bernie Krueger, capable pilot and passer, at quarterback, and Russ Steger at fullback.

Ivy Williamson, the new coach at Wisconsin, has quantity—four ends, seven tackles, six guards, four centers and eight backs who won major letters last year. But the squad may not come up to the league standard in quality.

Williamson's style of play is a modification of the T. He is looking for a quarterback who can handle the ball, pass, block and run. He also has an eye peeled for a handy fullback and high grade ends. Bob Wilson, center who was the most valuable Badger in 1947 and 1948, may be shifted to end.

The Indiana team will be young and green. But Coach Clyde Smith is fairly optimistic. The reason is a likely crop of sophomores.

The man most missed will be the versatile George Talaferro. Nick Sebek, a veteran and an excellent passer, probably will be the offensive quarterback. But one of the new men, James Gomory, has impressed Smith as an unusually smart field general.

Next: Notre Dame.

Early Spanish settlers in America brought the first sheep, goats, pigs, burros and cats to the Western Hemisphere.

"IT'S SO EASY TO PLACE A WANT AD"

The story of a cop, a dame and a killer is to open a three-day run at the State Theater starting with the Saturday midnight show. The picture, "Johnny Stool Pigeon," stars Howard Duff, Shelley Winters and Dan Duryea. The story was filmed where it actually unfolded—at Alcatraz. Also on the bill are "Nevada Trails" and a color cartoon.

Atlantic Pact Good Economic Medicine

WASHINGTON—The Atlantic Pact has more than a military meaning to some highly placed Economic Cooperation Administration (ECA) officials. They regard it as good economic medicine for Western Europe—in fact, as one of the most far reaching steps yet taken toward economic cooperation and development.

Customs walls and others trade barriers have long been the chief obstacles to the expansion and modernization of European industry. The barriers were erected largely for purposes of military security, to build up home industries so that each nation would be self sufficient in time of war.

But now with the era of collective security, in which each country agrees that its sole hope of safety lies in defending all of Western Europe, old inhibitions are being removed. The movement hasn't gotten far yet; but the general principle has been accepted, and the ECA men have seen many signs of progress.

Their idea is for Europe to arrange a new division of labor, each nation specializing in the work it can do cheapest and best, relinquishing industries which have proved uneconomical. There has been a tendency to try to develop solely for strategic reasons such enterprises as steel plants and oil refineries in countries which are not naturally adapted for them. One plan which is percolating in the minds of the Western European planners is that France might become the chief manufacturer of the jeep, large numbers of which are needed in military operations. It can be cheaply and efficiently manufactured only on a mass production basis.

And there is already a tendency for Great Britain to become chief, or sole producer of jet engines. Britain has proved its self pre-eminence in the field of light engineering, and nearly all the Western European nations are buying or planning to buy Britain's jet engines. The British might establish jet engine factories in other countries, such as Belgium or France, but they would maintain ownership. The Netherlands is thinking of going in for mass production of radio and radar equipment. And so forth.

One of the chief reasons for a relatively low rate of productivity in many European industries is that they have not engaged in mass production, which has done so much to raise the standard of living in the United States. Turning out products on an assembly line basis has made high quality and low cost possible.

But to have mass production you must have mass markets. In Europe the markets up to now have been largely domestic—the buyers have been chiefly those persons living within the same customs walls as the industries. As customs barriers fall mass markets would develop.

Another reason for Europe's economic backwardness has been the lack of initiative on the part of "protected" industries. Since customs barriers prevented foreign competition, the home industries have had no incentive to seek ways to reduce the cost of production. Faced with competition, however, industries seek to reduce costs by improving labor management methods, modernizing plants and plant management techniques and searching for better and cheaper materials.

Europeans have been impressed with America's large area of free trade—commerce without hindrance of customs walls among almost 150,000,000 persons. And it was primarily the search for military security, a union against England, that forced the somewhat hostile 13 colonies to merge their economic interests.

Rev. Abernethy Vacates Pulpit Of Church Here

Farewells Are Said With Unconcealed Note of Sadness

The First Presbyterian Church here today is without a regular pastor. . . and the congregation is downhearted.

Rev. and Mrs. John K. Abernethy and their four children left Thursday for their new home in Coshocton.

They were heavy-hearted as they drove away from the city that had been their home for the last six and a half years and made no attempt to conceal it.

The same went for the members of the church and congregation.

As Rev. and Mrs. Abernethy went about the task of winding up their affairs and taking care of the last-minute details they avoided the goodbyes whenever possible. Always they said: "O, but we'll be back soon and often." Then they hurried on.

Farewell Message

Asked if he or Mrs. Abernethy had any farewell message, Rev. Abernethy said: "Nothing, I guess, except that the people of this community have been mighty good to us. . . we certainly hate to leave."

Those were simple words, but their ring of sincerity gave them an added depth of meaning.

"It's not easy to leave so many good friends," Rev. Abernethy said. "Of course we're thankful we have our family, but a family is one thing and friends are another."

Three of the Abernethy children were born during Rev. Abernethy's term of service in Washington C. H. They are Ann and Jane and Joe, the twins and youngest of the family. Knox, the oldest, was born in Knightstown, Ind., where Rev. Abernethy held his first pastorate and just before the family came here.

Services To Be Held

Rev. Abernethy's departure does not mean, however, that the First Presbyterian Church will be without regular worship services.

The session, composed of church elders, is charged with the responsibility of getting what was described as a "supply minister" for each Sunday through Rev. Ivan Wilkins, the general presbyter of the Ohio Synod headquartered in Columbus.

Rev. Wilkins has made plans to occupy the pulpit here Sunday.

Paul Van Voorhis is the clerk of the session which already has under consideration several ministers who will be asked to conduct services here until the church gets its new pastor.

Church officials said it probably would be some time before the new minister is selected. Usually, two months or more are required to make the choice.

Meanwhile, the committee headed by O. D. Farquhar, is looking over a list of ministers for a new pastor.

The customary procedure is for the committee to go to different churches to hear available ministers preach. If they are impressed, the ministers are invited here to take the pulpit for a service. Then, the selection is put up to the congregation in special session.

Electric Combine Tested in Russia

MOSCOW—(AP)—An electric combine is being tested on Russian grain fields this summer. "Izvestia," "Pravda" and other papers recently announced that this experimental machine was now being tried out on the fields of the All-Union Agricultural Academy near Moscow.

It receives its power—as do Soviet electric tractors—through cables running from the subtransmission station to the combine.

With A Buckeye In Congress

Compromise On Brannan Plan Has Presidential Green Light

By CLARENCE E. BROWN

The House will end its three day recess on September 21, but is not expected to transact any important legislative business the first few days after resuming regular sessions. In the meantime the Senate is making little progress under the guidance of Majority Leader Lucas of Illinois, who is now predicting Congress will not adjourn before late October, and perhaps not until Thanksgiving.

President Truman's Labor Day speeches, appealing to the workers and the farmers of the nation, are being considered in Washington as purely political and as setting the stage for the opening of the 1950 campaign. General Eisenhower's recent statement on the dangers involved in the present trend toward statism has caused much discussion around the capitol. Many wonder whether the doughty general is angling for the 1952 Republican presidential nomination. Several Democrats senators are making public predictions President Truman will be a candidate for a third term. Senator Taft is devoting every free moment to mending his political fences in Ohio in preparation for 1950. Many trained political observers are now predicting the senator will be re-elected despite the opposition of the radical groups—and if re-elected that he will probably be the Republican nominee for the presidency in 1952.

While the revelations of the activities of General Harry Vaughn, the president's military aide and confidante, have been shocking to the nation, they have actually disclosed only petty flinching in behalf of race track groups and other small-time operators in which no great sums were involved. The more serious angle of the whole Vaughn affair is that the president of the United States seemingly can see no wrong in the things his friend and military aide has done and continues him in his official position. In fact, the president had General Vaughn accompany him on his Labor Day tour of the Midwest—excellent proof of his disregard for public opinion.

While President Truman in his Des Moines speech last week demanded congressional approval of the Brannan plan and pledged every effort to put the plan into effect, it is now being predicted in Washington that he will approve an agricultural bill to be sponsored by Senator Anderson of New Mexico, former secretary of agriculture. The Anderson bill will not be in line with the Brannan plan, but will be a compromise between the Gore bill recently enacted by the House, the 1938 AAA act now in effect, and the Aiken law passed by the last Congress and scheduled to become effective January 1. Under the Anderson bill, prices on six basic farm products—wheat, corn, cotton, tobacco, rice and peanuts—will be maintained at 90 percent of parity, with certain controls on acreage, while other crops will be given sliding scale price support as provided under the Aiken law. If the Anderson bill is approved there will be no sharp break in farm prices within the next 12 or 15 months, but rather a gradual decline. Seemingly it is the plan of the Truman administration to carry on a farm price support program as nearly like the present one as possible, with the Brannan plan being made an issue in the 1950 election campaign in the hope it will attract the votes of the unthinking.

The economic and financial conference now being held in Washington, United States, Canada and Great Britain, as this is written, is not expected to result in any clear-cut decision of world shaking importance. Administration spokesmen know the Congress will be skeptical and hard to sell on any plan which may mean either increased American aid to Great Britain or trade concessions which will injure the American economy. Many members of Congress believe the answer to Britain's problem is not more American dollars, but rather some fundamental changes in British policies, both governmental and economic. They appreciate the importance of Great Britain to America's security and prosperity, but will insist that Great Britain must cooperate with the United States by first doing her full share to help herself. British officials, who recently said they would not accept the 800 million dollars in American aid offered under the Marshall plan but must have a billion and a half instead, are due for a rude awakening, despite all the pretty speeches and promises made by the president and other administration spokesmen.

Federal officials expect enrollment in the elementary schools of the nation to be 893 thousand higher this year than last, to reach a total of approximately 20 million students. It is predicted that by 1957 there will be 27 million youngsters enrolled in our grade schools—all as a result of the heavily accelerated birth rate during the war years. It will require many new school buildings to house these additional students. Federal officials estimate that in order to meet the demand there should be a billion dollars worth of new school construction each year for the next ten years. During 1949 only about 700 million dollars is being spent on new school facilities.

Several prominent labor organizations are said to be preparing to campaign for amendments to the social security act so as to provide for the payment of old age benefits under social security to begin at the age of 45 instead of 65, as the law now provides. Just what amount social security taxes would have to be increased to finance such a program has not yet been estimated.

AMONG the passengers who arrived in New York aboard the Queen Mary was Lance Reventlow, 12-year-old son of heiress Barbara Hutton Troubetzkoi. He visited his mother abroad and stayed longer than usual with her because she was ill. He is returning to school at Newport, R.I. (International)

NORTHWEST STRIKES OIL—MINT OIL

By RICHARD H. SYRING
Central Press Correspondent

KENNEWICK, Wash.—Farmers in Washington and Oregon have struck oil—mint oil—which is bringing them new riches-per-acre. Harvest is just starting on what should be the biggest crop of mint, from which the oil is distilled. The northwest now produces 60 per cent of the nation's peppermint oil, surpassing Indiana and Michigan.

It is almost a cinch if you chew gum that part of the flavor came from the rich soil of the northwest, because about half of all the peppermint oil produced in this country goes for gum. Thirty per cent goes into confectioneries and dentifrices. Soaps, flavorings and drugs use the rest.

Prices range between $6 and $7 per pound of oil and from 50 to 75 pounds per acre is obtained. A yield of $525 per acre is possible, compared with a return of about $80 per acre on wheat land.

The two states have nearly 20,000 acres planted to mint. Indiana and Michigan acreage is greater but the western states produce nearly double the pounds of oil per acre.

MINT OIL didn't always bring riches. First mint was planted in the far west about 40 years ago. In those early days it cost more to produce the greenish-black fields of mint hay than the oil brought in money.

By 1928 the price had zoomed up to $12.75 per pound, only to drop to an all-time low of 90 cents in 1931. Since 1944 the price has hovered between $6 and $7 and that has meant real money in the pockets of mint farmers.

The peppermint plant is grown much the same as alfalfa hay is raised in the far west or as timothy hay is raised in the middle west. However, it is produced primarily from root stock. Most of the mint is grown in rows to permit cultivation and is grown on the same soil year after year.

Careful cultivation of the peppermint and a large amount of hand weeding are necessary to insure freedom from weeds when the peppermint hay is cut. If the mint hay has too many weeds, it seriously affects the odor and flavor of the oil. Consequently, it can be said that the mint grower produces his dollars from "cents." Buyers of mint oils are sniffers. The oil has to smell and taste right to bring the high prices, since the oil is not evaluated primarily on chemical composition. And, since the peppermint oil is used largely for foods, including flavorings, it must be produced under the cleanest of conditions.

MINT HAY is compressed into vat. Hot steam drives oil out of the hay.

Mint ground undergoes intensive cultivation from March until April. From then on it's cultivation and weeding until the latter part of August, when the first blossoms appear. From then until mid-September, depending on the weather, the mint hay is cut and dried partially in windrows in the field.

THE OIL is obtained from the leaves, so they must not be allowed to become dry enough to shatter. Harvest also must take place at a time when the grower estimates the maximum quantity of oil is contained in his crop. Harvesting right at the peak of oil content is one of the things a veteran mint grower gets to know.

The mint hay then is hauled to the distillery. Big growers have their own. Small growers usually take their mint hay to a central company, which charges so much per pound of oil.

When mint hay is ready for distilling, it is necessary for the farmer to work around the clock, to avoid letting the hay get too dry. The hay is compressed into vats. Hot steam is forced into the bottom of the vat, which drives the oil out of the hay.

The steam is then piped through cooling vats where the condensation takes place. It's a quick process, only taking a couple of hours, before the precious mint oil drips from the end of the metal coils into the receiving barrels. Distilling costs are estimated at about 75 cents per pound.

Chain Gang Fugitive Describes Cruelty

CLEVELAND, Sept. 15 (AP)—Frederick F. Fox, a fugitive from a Florida prison camp, was called back on the stand today for cross examination on his story of beatings and sweat boxes.

The twice-wounded war veteran is seeking his freedom on a writ of habeas corpus. He fled from a road gang working out of Live Oak, Fla. in June of 1948 while serving a 10-year sentence for armed robbery.

Testifying in federal court yesterday, he said he was beaten with a blackjack while guards held his arms, was kept in leg chains for eight months and contracted a disease from having to work in mucky swamps.

His guard captain, he continued, taunted him and other prisoners by saying: "Pray to me, not to God."

In preparing carrot and celery strips for a first course or a dunking platter never soak them in water; get them ready as short a time as possible before serving to preserve flavor and nutrients.

New Zealanders Offer Scenery For U.S. Dollars

Welcome Extended To Free-Spending American Travelers

By ERIC BENTON
WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Sept. 15.—(P)—This country is going to try to sell scenery and lamb to Americans to help meet the dollar crisis.

New Zealand finds it difficult to prune her dollar spending by 25 percent along with other British commonwealth countries. The reason is that dollar spending already is down almost to the bare bones.

Two years ago New Zealand cut imports of American newspapers, motor cars and other consumer goods. Not one new license to import American automobiles has been issued this year.

New Zealand will cut dollar spending still more. She likely will stop importing timber from the east coast of America, cut down on other imports. She will seek more newsprint, farm tractors, and industrial machinery from Sterling countries.

At the same time New Zealand hopes to build up her dollar earnings.

Outdoor Sports Too
New Zealand's trout streams, hot springs, ski resorts, mountain scenery and deep sea fishing grounds are big tourist assets.

The government is sending Roy M. Firth, a good salesman and assistant manager of the tourist department, to the United States to sell New Zealand from a tourist angle.

Meanwhile, the government is getting ready to welcome dollar spending Americans.

All state-owned hotels and tourist houses have been told to spruce up their ideas of service. They also have been granted liquor places in the country.

New Zealand is a great primary producing country. She hopes some of her products will win more U. S. dollars.

Food For Export
Almost all her surplus meat, butter and cheese goes to Britain. The flag-loving New Zealanders want this to go on.

But New Zealand government men, worried by the dollar problem, think some lamb can be sent to the United States without much loss to Britain. The quantity being talked of is two shipments in a year -- something over 10,000 tons.

Butter is another potential dollar earner, but men close to the government see a political snag there. New Zealanders are rationed to eight ounces a week. They will stand this rationing only as long as all the surplus goes to Britain.

If the government decides to send butter to U. S. and retains the ration, the labor party will lose a lot of votes in this year's general election.

New Zealand also is trying to plug a dollar leak in the resale of New Zealand wool to the United States by continental buyers. All New Zealand shippers of wool now are required to sign a declaration of the ultimate destination of wool exported.

Workers Insurance Called Socialistic

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 15.—(P)—Non-contributory social insurance and pensions for steelworkers were termed definitely socialistic today by Hiland G. Batcheller, president of Allegheny Ludlum Steel Corp.

"Our society," he said, "rightly supports the incompetent and unfit, but the American workman should never be prostituted."

Batcheller said he did not think anyone would quarrel with the recommendation of the president's fact-finding board concerning social insurance or with its suggestion for a serious study of pensions.

But he objected to the non-contributory angle and the setting of specific amounts to be spent toward pensions before the type of plan and the financing of it are worked out by employees and management.

"It's all part and parcel of the bogus philosophy of getting something for nothing," he said.

Batcheller took exception to the board's "announced philosophy concerning the American profit system."

In an address prepared for delivery before the manufacturers association of Connecticut he said that this system and the competition it engenders had made high standards of living available to all people.

Batcheller said the board showed real statesmanship and courage in standing firmly against another round of wages.

Last Man's Club Ranks Closed Here by Death

First of Banquets To Honor Dead to Be Held in 2 Weeks

The membership roll of the "Last Man's Club" of Washington C. H. today were closed.

Under the by-laws and the charter of the unique organization of war veterans, finis was written on the roster with the first death of a member.

When Loral N. Allen died Tuesday in the Veterans' Hospital in Dayton, that closed the ranks of the "Last Man's Club" here.

The club was started here last November, just about 10 months ago. It had 118 members when Allen died.

Affiliation with the Veterans of Foreign Wars is a pre-requisite for membership in the Last Man's Club. Once accepted for membership, the membership continues for life.

Under the club's constitution the annual meeting is held the first week of every November, the time of the granting of its charter.

And, also under the constitution the annual banquet is to be held the second week after the date of the first death of a member.

Club Given Name

The club was nameless until the first death within the membership. Now it takes the name of the first member to die—so it will be the Loral A. Allen Last Man's Club of Washington C. H. from now until the last member dies.

The purpose of the club, as set forth in the constitution, is to "honor the memories of departed comrades. . . and to further good fellowship."

A special meeting of the club is to be called "within the next few days" to set the date for the first annual banquet and decide on the place.

The banquet must be held week after next.

Officers of the club who gathered in solemn conference Wednesday night in the office of the VFW said the inaugural banquet would be an "elaborate affair . . . something we'll all remember . . . something Loral would want."

A committee is to be named later to arrange the details.

Allen was the 14th to sign up for membership in the club here. A veteran of the first World War, he also was among the oldest in the club. The youngest member is about 23 years old now.

Chair To Be Vacant

When the club holds its first annual banquet, a plate will be broken in the memory of Loral Allen. Each year thereafter, his plate and the plates of all other members who have died will be placed on the table and turned over. Their chairs are to be there too—but vacant.

Members of the club are to hold the annual meeting and banquet as long as any live.

Earl Snyder is president of the club; Earl Slaven, senior vice president; Herbert Woodruff, junior vice president; Darrell Wood, secretary-treasurer; Don Hilt, chaplain; Al Conaway, historian and O. H. Conaway, sergeant-at-arms.

Arson Scented In Big Blaze

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 15—(P)—Police today said the $300,000 fire on Million Dollar Pier may have been set deliberately.

"We have every reason to believe it was arson," Detective Robert O'Keefe said after an initial investigation yesterday while the 43-year-old boardwalk landmark still smoldered. O'Keefe is the police department's arson specialist.

Sheets of flame mushroomed from the 1,700-foot structure just before dawn yesterday and were fanned down the beach by a northeast wind.

A 300-foot section of the Long Pleasure Palace, including the famed ballroom and several amusement concessions, was gutted completely. The pier had closed down for the winter on Labor Day.

Abductor Caught By 100-Man Posse

TOLEDO, Sept. 15—(P)—A youth who told police he is John A. Blakeney, 20, of Toledo, was captured near Napoleon, O., last night by a 100-man posse.

State Highway Patrol Sgt. H. T. Covell said Blakeney admitted he abducted two motorists and then fled in the auto of his second victim.

No charges have been filed against Blakeney.

Abduction victims were D. G. Crawford, Chicago, and Sam L. Rice, Jr., Manumee. Neither was harmed.

Life Imprisonment Decreed for Killer

ATHENS, Sept. 15—(P)—John Lacorte, 51-year-old Gloucester barber, was sentenced to life imprisonment in Ohio Penitentiary yesterday for the slaying of Mrs. Anna Lewis, 36, in a Gloucester restaurant.

Common Pleas Judge Roy D. Williams also sentenced Lacorte to spend each June 10 in solitary confinement. That is the date Mrs. Lewis was slain.

Lacorte was found guilty Monday night of first degree murder. A jury of eight women and four men recommended mercy, making the life sentence mandatory.

Pork and Beef Prices Still On Upward Trend

Vegetable Market Has Ups and Downs; Peak Not Reached

(By the Associated Press)
Pork and beef prices continued edging upward this week in many market centers.

Also higher were top grade eggs, carrots and big western baking potatoes. Somewhat lower in most stores were apples, lettuce, snap beans, melons and cabbage.

Although many trade sources predicted that meat prices would start downward well before the end of the month, there was no indication this week they had even reached their seasonal peak.

Demand for pork was broad as cool snaps in many large areas sharpened appetites. The beef market was caught in an in-between period: choice cattle from grain feed lots was getting scarce and more costly as its season neared an end, and the grass range-fed cattle was not yet arriving in volume.

The Agriculture Department estimated the seasonal drop in hog prices this fall and early winter might be somewhat greater than the 20-year average of 18 percent because of anticipated heavy marketings. Cattle price declines probably will be smaller, the livestock report added.

Poultry Steady

Veal prices were up slightly at retail this week, and lamb was about unchanged following last week's gentle decline. Poultry also was mostly steady. Top grade eggs climbed one to five cents a dozen—a continuation of the seasonal upswing in effect for several weeks now.

The early-fall shipping pattern began shaping up in the produce markets. Far-western apples began arriving in eastern stores. The first California tomatoes reached the Atlantic seaboard—but some traders said they'd have lots of competition yet from tomatoes grown in nearby gardens. The Carolinas, Virginia and Maryland started shipping sweet potatoes to far-distant markets.

The basic grade of coffee beans this week hit a new record high wholesale price in New York—fractionally above 31 cents a pound, compared with less than 27 cents last spring and less than eight cents before the war. Retailers expected roasted coffee prices to rise soon.

Staple Prices Rise
Behind the rising coffee bean prices were several factors, including a smaller output from Brazil, record world consumption, and rush buying touched off by the possibility of an east coast dock strike at the end of this month.

In Washington, the Senate Democratic policy committee decided not to take up until the second session of Congress the House-approved bill to repeal the federal taxes on margarine. That means the tax will continue at least until next January.

The Dun & Bradstreet Wholesale Food Price Index this week climbed to $5.85 from $5.82 a week ago, but was still 15.8 percent below a year ago. The index represents the total wholesale cost of a pound each of 31 foods in general use.

Finland Making Economic Progress Despite Staggering War Indemity

By ESTHER V. W. TUFTY
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The one thing every American knows about Finland is "she paid her world war debts."

That is repeated so often to the Finnish minister, Dr. Kalle Juttila, here in Washington that he has a pat reply to the welcome praise.

"Oh, it's not worth mentioning . . . just regular business procedure."

Finland has received another loan. The amount was 12½ million, bringing the postwar total to 50 million dollars.

The loan means a great deal to this little country unhappily located just this side of the Iron Curtain and burdened with a war indemnity equivalent to 300 million gold dollars to be paid to the Soviet Union over a period of eight years.

How are the debt-paying Finns getting along economically, outside the Atlantic Pact, without Marshall Plan aid, and in the Red shadow?

In an exclusive interview, Dr. Juttila cited three bright factors helping Finland to get back on her feet since the war. Topping all is American credit. Her forests, which cover 64 per cent of her land, are supplying her profitable timber industries. Third factor is the people themselves, who are "working hard to speed up recovery."

THE MINISTER was not reluctant to speak about Russia.

The official policy—and Dr. Juttila's personal philosophy—seems to be: "During the war we fought Russia. During the peace we are trying to be friendly with both the East and the West."

He added, "Finland has no economic power, no military power, nothing but moral power . . . and that is our strength."

More than once Dr. Juttila mentioned, "Finland is one of the oldest democracies in the world, and while we are not in the United Nations, we ardently believe in the principles upon which the UN charter was founded."

Incidentally, the Communists and left-wing socialists, officially and misleadingly named the Democratic league political party, hold down only 38 seats in their Diet (congress) of 200 members.

The 284,290 Finnish people living in the United States will rejoice that the food situation is definitely bettered. There is "plenty of dairy produce."

Then the minister laughed and added: "We are again exporting that fine Swiss cheese made in Finland." The surplus of meat is so large Finland is exporting to Sweden, Norway and Russia.

Food rationing is entirely abolished except for sugar and coffee. Fat is scarce.

"The shops are full but little is sold because the prices are very high," said the minister and immediately started talking about the wonderful tourist advantages of a country slated to get the Olympic Games for 1952.

Naturally, the Finnish minister favors the recently Senate-approved plan to use Finnish war debt payments to the United States for an exchange of Finnish and American students.

The United States might even like to cancel the debt, except for setting a precedent. (Other countries would ask for the same treatment just to eliminate a black mark on our Treasury books.)

THE MAN the Finnish people can thank for this partial return of the debt payments is a former Princeton professor, H. Alexander Smith, now the senior senator from New Jersey.

He is a member of the Senate foreign relations committee, which under his enthusiasm for this two-way educational street of good will, voted favorably on his bill.

Modestly, he says the idea was not his. A Quaker, David Hinshaw, whispered in his ear. But many ideas are thus given senators that come out the other ear.

The senator was immediately interested, harkening back to Herbert Hoover days, when he helped set up the Belgium Foundation after World War I with the same objective of "getting acquainted."

Like other student adventures in internationalism, the program will be administered by the State department under the supervision of George V. Allen, assistant secretary of State for public affairs.

If anyone wants evidence of benefits derived from student exchange programs, he can point to the Finnish minister as an outstanding example, for Dr. Juttila knows Americans better than most diplomats.

He was educated at Cornell university as a Rockefeller student back in 1927. Today his two sons attend the same school and his daughter is taking home economics at the University of Maryland.

In 1939 Dr. Juttila was the Finnish commissioner-general at the World's Fair in New York and was appointed minister to the United States in 1945.

Dennis O'Keefe has one of his most interesting starring roles in W. R. Frank's nostalgic film "The Great Dan Patch" which is coming to the Fayette Theater here Sunday and Monday. Gail Russell is cast opposite him in the United Artists release.

What's phosphorus to a pig?

Just a half a pound of your 250-lb. pig is phosphorus. This seems a small amount. But without it, your pig would die. And there are other minerals just as vital to livestock. Some they need in quite large amounts . . . calcium and sodium as well as phosphorus. Others we call trace elements. These they need in very small amounts . . . such as cobalt, iron, copper and manganese.

But your animals do need these trace elements. The people at the agricultural colleges have proved that past all doubt. Some minerals are a "must" if you want to raise healthy, fast-gaining cattle. That goes for lambs and hogs, too. For example, these men find that grass and grains in Dade County, Florida, are short of copper and iron. Clallam County, Washington, needs iodine to check goiter. They know that San Diego County, California, hasn't enough phosphorus. In Aroostook County, Maine, the scarce mineral is cobalt. Ranchers and farmers in these four corners of the country have this problem. Their feeds and forages are short of one or more vital minerals. Many other areas share the problem, including parts of the great Corn Belt.

But you ask, "How can I spot animals which suffer from mineral shortage?" It's not too easy. If the lack is serious, your stock may have rickets, "big neck," anemia or other ailments. But there are some early symptoms you can spot. These are bone chewing, loss of appetite, slow gains, rough and scrubby coats. Or just a general unthrifty condition gives you the clue. If you start feeding a mineral which contains the essential trace elements, you may bring them around fast. But if this doesn't work, then you should consult your veterinarian, county agent or agricultural college.

The common mineral deficiencies in your area are known. By feeding mineral-balanced rations, you can correct these lacks. Or you can build up the mineral content of the soil. Either, or both, of these will help you grow healthier livestock, at a lower cost.

Supplemental Mineral for Wintering Range Ewes

by William H. Burkitt
Montana State College

Thirteen mineral elements are known to be necessary for normal functioning of an animal body. However, this does not mean that all 13 must be supplied in a mineral mixture. Many of them are present, under usual feeding conditions, in sufficient amounts for breeding ewes. Those lacking in Montana include sodium and chlorine (salt), iodine, phosphorus, and possibly cobalt.

Lack of sufficient iodine in the ration of pregnant ewes results in lambs being born with "big neck" (goiter). Thin wool in lambs may also result. If dead or weak lambs have shown "big neck" or thin wool at birth in past years, stabilized iodized salt should definitely be fed the ewes this winter.

Phosphorus deficiency may exist in wintering range ewes, particularly if there is little or no supplemental feeding. Abortions and weak lambs may result from deficient phosphorus. Pregnant ewes should have from 0.16% to 0.18% phosphorus in their feed. Many grass hays and mature range grasses contain less than 0.15% phosphorus and some contain as low as 0.04% phosphorus. Bone meal, defluorinated rock phosphates, and monosodium phosphate are satisfactory sources of phosphorus. Palatability and consumption may be improved by mixing with salt.

Cobalt is believed to be needed by micro-organisms in the paunch. A lack results in loss of appetite, less feed consumption, and eventually starvation. A possible cobalt deficiency may be guarded against by mixing 1 ounce of cobalt salt with each 100 pounds of stock salt. Cobalt carbonate, chloride, or sulfate are all satisfactory. (Editor's note: The principles of nutrition discussed above apply to most kinds of livestock and in all parts of the country.)

And we rounded up the facts we need to make these messages interesting and useful to you producers. As we said away back in 1944—"This is your page, and we welcome suggestions from our readers." We still do. Just write to me at Swift & Company, Chicago 9, Illinois . . . And when you're in Chicago, drop in and see us.

LET'S SUPPORT OUR "MEAT TEAM"—You know, times change—but some folks don't change with the times. I'm thinking of the type of man who always thinks that someone is getting the best of him in business. He sells a load of steers. No matter what his return, he's not satisfied—the packer, the commission man, the retailer—somebody else always gets a "bigger slice." But, during this past summer, I talked to a lot of people about the livestock-meat industry and our mutual problems. And I found a refreshing, encouraging attitude—"Sure, we got problems. Who hasn't these days? But if producer, packer and retailer work together as the 'meat team,' we'll work things out . . . It's just good business to have a decent regard for the contributions made by other members of your team. I hope you have followed the 'Meat Team' advertisements of the American Meat Institute and will talk to your neighbors about them.

FACT CONFIRMED—Out in the West, whenever I passed a town with a local meat-packing plant, I thought, "This town, out here where there is lots of livestock, is well served by that local plant. But what about the distant cities filled with meat eaters and no nearby livestock production to speak of?" I know for a fact that meat has to travel an average of more than 1,000 miles to reach those consumers. The only way they can get meat is through the low-cost processing and marketing services provided by nationwide meat packers, like Swift & Company.

livestock are governed by what the packer can get for the meat and the by-products. This is perfectly demonstrated, as we have pointed out above, when the price for one kind of cattle, in short supply, is moving up at the same time that prices of other cattle, in heavy supply, are moving down.

Where the first chickens came from? Which breed of poultry is native to America? How the shell gets around an egg? You'll find the answers to these and dozens of other questions in "The Story of Poultry." Lots of pictures—easy-to-read words. Write for your copy today and show this notice to your school teacher. MEET WILLIE THE WIZARD in a Flash He Can Figure Out Everything Except Where His Next Meal Is Coming From

By TAMARA ANDREEVA
Central Press Correspondent
LOS ANGELES—Sheriff's deputies Dick White and Perry Simmons sat at the desk of the East Los Angeles police station, laboriously working out a solution to a complicated mathematical problem. One of them looked up at a slight, sad-eyed individual in a wrinkled brown suit and said: "Well, how much do YOU have, Willie?" "My answer is 765,098,000,378,987,645," Willie said. It took the deputies another hour to catch up to Willie, but their final answer tallied with his.

Willie the Wizard

How did Willie arrive at the answer, they asked again and again. Willie could only shrug. He could add, subtract and multiply large figures ever since he was four.

Still, this achievement did not buy him a meal or a roof over his head. That is how he often happened to hang around the East Los Angeles station, where friendly cops took care of him. Some even gave him food and lodging in their homes.

No one knew how Willie came by his strange powers. His father, an Omega, Ga., farmer, by Willie's own admission had to take off his shoes to complete even the simplest figuring. The first time Willie N. Dysart, known around Los Angeles as Willie the Wizard, ever had any inkling of his talent, was when his father sent him to a nearby grocery store at Omega.

Willie added up his bill quicker than the astonished grocer could punch it out on an ornate cast iron register. "Well, I swan," the grocer repeated several times, and then made Willie stay and add up purchases of his other customers. Everyone was delighted. Everyone, that is, but Willie, who on arrival home got a severe kicking for being late.

By the time Willie was 15, some sharp promoters got hold of him and with promises of big money carted him off to the distant Atlanta. Given to presentiments, Willie took a train home before the swindlers could roll him for his train fare.

Several years later, while getting a shave in a barbershop at Albany, Ga., he again had "a funny grade), yet all could do problems of higher mathematics over which Einstein would have to stop and think about twice before giving a correct answer.

The best remembered of these was a Virginia Negro slave, who could give answers to most complex mathematical problems, and yet could neither read nor write. In the eighteenth century, scientists and laymen alike could only shake their heads in astonishment as an 11-year-old lad, Jed Buxton, multiplied or extracted the square root of figures 20 digits long. He was illiterate.

Willie, fascinated by many scientific men of whom he speaks as "those men in them universities who put metal gadgets and wires on my head." But no manner of testing did ever reveal to them Willie's secret method. He says he figures things out by breaking the process down into many smaller, simpler ones, and then letting his mind subconsciously assemble them all into a final answer.

Willie is irritated with people asking how he can do it so quickly without any preliminary calculations on paper. "Well," is his usual retort, "when you see the word cat, you do not say to yourself, 'c-a-t' and then write down 'cat' and then say, 'cat.' You just see the word cat, register cat, and say cat!"

Truth is, sometimes Willie himself cannot explain how he does it. Thus he can look at the Empire State building, and give you the number of bricks that went into its making, with an error, perhaps, of four to six bricks. Elsewhere such wizardry may have put Willie in a top spot in the science or entertainment field, but Hollywood is so full of the self-styled geniuses, a real McCoy does not stand a chance. Although Willie guested on several radio programs, he still cannot make a consistent living.

Friendly sheriffs and an Italian radio dealer, Bosty Pizzo, are his only insurance against tough times. The sheriffs magnanimously fix him up with room and board when sledding gets rocky, and Bosty slips him a fin or three in an emergency. In Los Angeles, it appears, one does better by adding two and two and getting three.

Most of them did not know or care how they came by their strange ability, and most of them were barely literate (as is Willie; he never went beyond the third

Students May Register Where It's Convenient

Need Not Return to Home to Comply With Federal Law

College and university students of this community who become 18 years of age after the school term starts need not return to their homes to register under the Selective Service Law, Ohio State Director, Colonel C. W. Goble, said Thursday but may register at the local board most convenient to them, as may others when they reach the age of 18.

"The law requires registration of all young men -- with very few exceptions -- within five days after their eighteenth birthday," Colonel Goble said, "but there still seems to be some misunderstanding as to the place of registration. All the young man has to do is present himself to the local board or registration place designated in that particular area most convenient in the place he happens to be when he becomes 18. The registration process is simple and requires only a short time. The data thus gathered is sent to the local board of the community he terms his home and which has jurisdiction over him."

When the registrant has a permanent home, the permanent home address should be given to registration officials, Colonel Goble said. For this purpose "home" is the place with which the registrant normally identifies himself and at which he would wish to be classified.

Colonel Goble pointed out that there is no liability for service under the act until the age of 19 is reached, but he emphasized the obligation to register at 18.

"The law is specific," he said, "and provides severe penalty for failure to comply."

Colonel Goble added that the law is also specific in its requirements concerning obligation of a registrant to keep his local board informed as to any change in his address -- where he may be reached by mail, that is -- or change in his status under the act.

"That applies after the registration becomes 26 as well as before," Colonel Goble said, "and it means that college and university students, as well as other registrants, should notify their respective local boards when they leave their homes. There is no form for this. It may be done by mail or personally appearing at the board office."

Colonel Goble emphasized that the requirements to register and legal obligations of registrants were in no way altered because there have been no inductees within the past few months.

New Holland Gets Set For Fall Festival

Opens on Streets
Sept. 20 For Five Nights of Fun

Nearly everybody in New Holland and the surrounding countryside today was helping put the finishing touches on plans for the annual Fall Festival which is to open there Sept. 20 and continue into the night of Sept. 24 next week.

The Fall Festival has been one of the town's outstanding events for several years.

The Chamber of Commerce and the American Legion post are combining forces to put it on this year "bigger and better than ever."

While it is primarily a time for entertainment and fun, the Festival also is to have its more serious and practical side, the publicity committee spokesmen said.

Carnival Atmosphere

In a typical carnival atmosphere, there are to be rides and shows and concessions spread over the two streets at the principal intersection of the business area.

The rides and shows and many of the concessions are to be brought in by the W. S. Curl Amusement Co. Many other concessions, however, are to be set up by New Holland organizations.

The Church of Christ is to have one of the eating places and the American Legion is to have the fried fish concession.

The principal street in the heart of town is to be virtually packed with merry-go-round, ferris wheel and rides designed especially for the kiddies.

Special Attractions

For special attractions, there is to be a performance by the McClain High School band from Greenfield Wednesday night; a similar show by the Circleville High School band Thursday evening and another Friday by the Adelphi Community Band on Friday.

One of the Thursday highlights is to be a public auction of limestone donated by producers for that purpose. The proceeds are to go into the Festival fund, for there are expenses to be met in staging the event.

Stores are to remain open every evening during the Festival.

No programs have been arranged for the daytime and it was said it was doubtful that any of the concessions or rides would be open until early evening—unless the gathering of fun-seeking warranted.

While just about everybody in the community is lending support and helping put on the Festival, committees of the Chamber of Commerce and American Legion post are the keystones in the planning.

Robert Bush is president of the Chamber of Commerce and Martin Lininger is commander of the Legion post.

Senator Taft was taken to the banquet room of the Hotel Washington where he was entertained at dinner by the Fayette County Republican Executive Committee. He spoke briefly to the committee, warning them of the great need for organization toward getting the people out to vote in next year's "key" election. He indicated that the last Truman victory came largely through default by reason of lack of public interest. He particularly urged that the farm vote was a vital factor and that if the agricultural people of the nation could be made to understand the approaching danger of too much government control, there was every reason to believe that the 1950 election would provide a Congress which would help keep the nation on the path of independence for the individual.

No Set Speeches

There was no effort by Senator Taft to make any set speeches. He sought and answered questions freely and with candor. It appeared to be the consensus of opinion among those who asked questions and heard his answers that he was well informed on practically all public matters, was honest in his convictions and unafraid of expressing his views.

Following his dinner with the Republican committee he went to the George Washington suite in the Hotel Washington where it had been arranged for various groups to confer with him.

In response to a general invitation from those arranging his visit here, that any who cared to see him would be welcome to sit in on some of these conferences whether or not they were identified with any particular group, there were many who came and participated in the questions and answers.

Brannan Plan "Deceptive"

"We must have a price support program for the farmer," said Senator Robert A. Taft here Wednesday. "But I am against the Brannan Plan as advocated because it is deceptive."

Starting his group talks in Washington C. H. before a gathering of over a hundred persons in the Farm Co-operative Association building at 4 P. M., Ohio's senior senator declared his stand on many issues of the day.

Making what he called his "report to the people," Taft said it is necessary that he return to Ohio to find out what the seven and a half million people he represents are really thinking.

"Many farmers I've talked to in Ohio have indicated they would not comply with provisions of the Brannan Plan," the senator asserted.

"The plan seeks to maintain high prices for the farmer and low prices for the consumer, with the taxpayers paying the difference. And you are the taxpayers," said Taft to the group.

Laughter followed Taft's remark that, "I hate to denounce the Brannan Plan outright, because it contains some features approved by farmers in other laws, but Mr. Brannan keeps changing it every day. No one is sure today what it may be tomorrow."

"I am more in favor of something like the Aiken Bill, which provides for a sliding scale of from 60 to 90 percent of parity," he continued. "The price would be raised on scarce crops to encourage the farmer to raise them and the price on surplus crops would fall."

"It seems to me that the Brannan Plan is too inflexible and would lead to production control. This would bring about a situation where the farmer would be told what he can plant and what he can't plant," explained Taft.

"I don't purport to be a farm expert," the senator said, "but I think production control and reduced production is not the answer. There are ways to find distribution for our surplus."

"Some farm support program is necessary, for two reasons: first, equality for the farmer. The farmer is entitled to the same basis of equality as in other industries where the market is pretty well frozen by wage rates."

"Second, if we want to prevent a depression like the thirties, we should prevent a serious reduction in farm prices which may turn a recession into a depression."

He pointed out that encouragement of the consumption of animal products would increase production and consume much of the grain surplus.

Other Questions Answered

Turning to other topics, Senator Taft recalled that many people have been coming to Washington, D. C., to get the government to spend money, mainly on welfare programs.

"In the old days, people did more things for themselves in their own states and local communities," said Taft, but he emphasized the danger of letting regulation and administration of local matters slip into federal hands.

"I believe that federal aid should be used in such fields as housing, food, education and health," added Taft, "but their regulation and administration by the federal government will take us down the road to nationalization and then to socialization. Such aid as should be given should be to the states for administration."

In the field of health, he said, the compulsory health bill proposed in Washington, D. C. would completely change the present system.

A federal bureau would take over all the administration of public health, including the medical care of the 80 percent of the people who are now perfectly able to pay for it themselves, the senator said.

He added that conditions soon would become as they are in England, with people flooding doctors with minor complaints and the tax burden becoming unbearable.

He said the British tax burden is 38 percent of their national income while ours is approximately 25 percent.

Britain cannot compete, he said, because of their bankrupt condition, which was brought about by two reasons: they didn't maintain free competition and they have a labor control which is anti-business.

He said that the tax burden is a major reason for the destruction of the incentive to work, expand and progress in Britain.

Senator Taft then opened himself to questions from the floor. Additional subjects were injected into the discussion by a variety of questions from the gathering.

W. W. Montgomery asked the senator how the devaluation of the English pound would affect farm prices in the U. S. Taft replied that it cuts both ways. He said it will have the effect, for England, of increasing their exports while requiring them to pay more for their imports.

"Any change Britain makes, however," said Taft, "is just temporary. Their ultimate remedy is a revision of their methods or of their basic system."

Charles Haigler asked about the increase in the minimum wage.

The senator said he was inclined to favor the 75-cent minimum since prices have far outstripped wages and the production of the country has risen an average of four percent yearly since 1939. He said that the advocates of the measure felt that anyone who can employ labor is able to pay a reasonable minimum amount.

Walter Sollars, who first introduced Senator Taft to the group, asked who was excluded from the minimum wage. Taft replied that the measure applied only to interstate industries. Workers in farm industries and intra-state workers in retail stores, for example, are excluded.

Clarence Cooper raised the point that many Ohio farmers could not obtain loans for wheat storage purposes and the weather here endangered the crop of farmers without facilities. The senator said that sometime ago he had discussed the problem with Robert Peelle, who was concerned about the lack of loans available for the construction of co-ops or storage facilities.

He said that Commodity Credit Corporation has a program for providing plenty of storage. "It seems to me there is a certain amount of money available for storage credit, but I would rather see the loans made by private organizations than by the government," said Taft.

C. M. Gibboney then posed the question: "Why does there seem to be so much delay in the adoption of the Hoover commission recommendations?"

Taft's answer was that there hasn't been a tremendous amount of delay. "We have passed four bills in line with the commission report," he stated.

He accused the budget commission of rewriting the bills, to a great extent. For example, Taft said, the recommendation for the new department of welfare simply took the Federal Security Agency and made it into a department. "It seemed to be such a sabotage of the Hoover Plan that we turned it down. Six other plans have been carried out, but I don't think they will save much money in the form presented to Congress," he stated.

"And I don't think the rest of the recommendations will be carried out," continued Taft.

He said there has to be federal administration cooperation and it just doesn't exist in many departments.

The Brannan Plan was termed a "vote-getting scheme" by Ralph Penn as he described what he felt was an unfavorable attitude toward it at group meetings he had attended. Taft again commented on the plan, calling it "unsound."

Frank Alexander of Jeffersonville asked the senator for the latest information on the Anderson Plan. Taft replied that he is not familiar with its latest form which may reach Congress within the next 10 days. "But the Democrats and Republicans have agreed on it in the Senate. The battle will be in the House," Taft said. It will provide between 75 and 90 percent parity. If no action is taken on it, though, the Aiken Bill will go into effect January 1, he added.

A couple of questions on the cold war brought Russia into the discussion.

"The opinion of army people I've talked to is that there will be no fighting war. The Russians have not advanced beyond the boundaries given them at the Yalta Conference. Concessions made there put Russia in her present threatening position," he said.

"Russia's attack is in the form of propaganda—through the ideology of Communism. She expects it to bring about a collapse of the capitalistic economy," was Taft's analysis of the situation. He said he was in favor of fighting it with propaganda from the U. S.

Another person asked if the U. S. would be obligated to war if Russia attacked Yugoslavia. Taft replied negatively, in bringing the meeting of the farm groups to a close.

Other Group Questions

The battery of questions continued in the talks with other groups at the Washington Hotel at 7:45 P. M.

Fifteen-minute sessions had been scheduled for the professions, county and city officials, educational groups, women's and veterans' organizations, but the high interest resulted in a fluidity that kept many present through more than one meeting.

The special interest that predominated any one group caused Senator Taft to concentrate on just the pertinent topics, but the range of questions later brought him again over the field he had explained earlier.

To the professional people others in the health field, Taft said that the compulsory health bill would mark the end of the freedom of the medical profession.

"Probably 250,000 additional federal employees will be needed to administer the proposed system," estimated the senator, "in the greatest departure yet made by our federal government."

It is the most typical example of what people mean by the welfare state and it is what has taken the incentive out of the British people, claimed Taft.

He said the present Congress is absolutely opposed to the bill and feels that it will be talked up next year only as a propaganda election weapon.

Taft admitted many defects of the present system where there is a maldistribution of doctors and medical facilities. Rural areas, and southern states suffer especially from inadequate medical care.

He said he is in favor of the state partially subsidizing doctors who will work in rural areas needing medical care. There is also pending in Congress a bill providing financial aid to colleges to help them train the many medical students needed to alleviate the shortage of physicians.

Federal Spending Criticized

Taft criticized spending habits of the national administration which sent a billion and a half dollars in military assistance to Europe after an economy drive by Congress slashed other appropriations earlier to save that amount for use here in health and education programs.

He said such military aid is, in his opinion, more of an incitement to war than an insurance of peace. He said he feared it will result in an armament race.

Since it will take five years to arm the countries surrounding Russia, he thinks war might be provoked if the Russians feel they have a better chance to attack now while the smaller countries are unprepared.

He is in favor of the Atlantic Pact, he says, since it is in full accordance with provisions of the United Nations Charter. It allows any group of nations to join together in common defense, he says but balks on the military assistance phase. "I think, however, the 20-year part of the pact is a bit unfortunate," he said, "since it will involve us in every small European dispute for a long time."

Education Aid Views

In speaking to the school groups, Taft explained a federal-aid-to-education bill he is helping to shape.

He said it would help equalize education in all the states, providing more money to those states needing it the most and even allowing a flat rate of $5 per pupil to every state. The minimum that the bill would require the state to spend for each child would be $55. But federal control would be out after the funds are distributed, he pointed out.

This would help bring up the standard of education in states like Alabama and Mississippi, where the rate per child for schooling is one-third that of New York and one-half that of Ohio, he asserted.

Questions from the floor caused Taft to reiterate his stand on the issues of health, housing, federal aid and government regulation.

He patiently reaffirmed positions taken during his tour and in earlier group sessions as he talked to the last gathering, which included women's organizations and veterans.

He roundly lashed the Veterans Administration for what he called "arbitrary interpretation of provisions of the G. I. Bill."

Taft praised as "very valuable" the educational programs under the bill and even the VA's intentions in trying to eliminate fly-by-night schools. But he assailed bureaucratic officials who took it upon themselves to attach arbitrary orders to appropriation bills that caused the shutdown of new trade schools that have branched off from their tested parent.

The six-hour visit of Senator Taft terminated at this point as the hundred-odd people who had listened to him during the evening clustered about the corridors and hotel lobby, continuing their talks, stimulated by Taft's information.

Price Supports

commodity must, under law, receive price support. Hence, it's part of the mandatory program.

BUTTER—Supported at 90 percent of parity by direct purchases from either producers or handlers. Support price originally was 57 to 59 cents a pound, but recently was raised from 60 to 62 cents. Through Sept. 1 the government had bought 62,536,426 pounds, mostly after the support price was raised. Large speculative profits have been made by handlers in the butter program. Knowing the support price was going to be raised, they bought at a lower price this summer, stored the butter, and now are handing it over to the government. This is a mandatory support program.

CHICKENS—Will be supported at 90 percent of parity. Prices have not been announced yet. Mandatory.

CORN—Supported by loans and purchase agreements at 90 percent of parity. Actual support price has not been announced yet. Farmers placed 555,638,507 bushels from the 1948 crop under loan, an all-time record. This grain is now stored in farm cribs, commercial elevators and government bins. Corn presents a headache to the department because there may not be enough room to store all the new crop. Mandatory.

CHEESE—Supported by purchases at 3175 cents a pound for grade a cheddar, or 90 percent of parity. Through Sept. 1 the government had bought 4,992,854 pounds. The program started only recently, after Great Britain cut down its purchases of American cheese. Non-mandatory.

CROP SEED—Supported by outright purchases for various types at different prices. Included in this are hairy vetch, common vetch, wilemette vetch, crimson clover, blue lupine, common ryegrass, Austrian winter peas and rough grass. Non-mandatory.

EGGS—Supported at 90 percent of parity by purchases of dried eggs from driers. The driers must certify they have paid 35 cents a dozen on the farm for the fresh eggs. Through Sept. 1 the department had bought 58,429,120 pounds of dried whole eggs. Mandatory.

GRAIN SORGHUMS—Supported by loans and purchase agreements at $2.09 a hundred pounds, or 70 percent of parity. A total of 915,350 bushels from this year's crop have been supported. Last year the total was 1,325,948 bushels. Non-mandatory.

HAY SEED—Supported at 90 percent of parity by direct purchases. Included are various types of alfalfa, lespedeza, clovers, grasses and range grasses. All are supported at different prices. Non-mandatory.

HOGS—Will be supported at 90 percent of parity, if needed, this autumn and winter. Actual support prices not announced yet. The department plans to operate this program by buying dressed pork, keeping it in cold storage warehouses. Prices are now above 90 percent of parity and support will not be necessary if they remain there. Mandatory.

MILK—Supported by purchase of non-fat dry milk solids. Price is 12.75 cents a pound for spray type and 11.50 cents a pound for roller type. Through Sept. 1 the department had bought 91,091,875 pounds of spray type and 84,037,784 pounds of roller type. Milk also is supported indirectly through the butter and cheese programs. Mandatory.

OATS—Supported by loans and purchase agreements at 69 cents, or 70 percent of parity. Thus far this year, 2,142,865 bushels have been obtained support. Last year the total was 23,270,739. Non-mandatory.

PEAS—Will be supported by loans and purchases at prices to reflect 60 percent of parity. Mandatory.

POTATOES—Supported by purchases from growers or dealers at 60 percent of parity, prices varying by grades. Last year's crop was supported at 90 percent of parity. Potatoes were among the first commodities to need support after the war. More money was lost on supporting them in the 1947 and 1948 fiscal years, during the postwar inflation, than on any other commodity. Mandatory.

RYE—Supported by loans and purchase agreements at $1.27 a bushel, or 72 percent of parity. There were only 1,928 bushels in the program on July 30. Last year 1,408,305 bushels obtained support. Non-mandatory.

TOBACCO—Supported by loans at 90 percent of parity, which equals 42 1/2 cents a pound on flue-cured types. Prices are above the loan level and production is controlled by marketing quotas. Last year, 100,000,000 pounds were placed in the loan. Mandatory.

TURKEYS—Will be supported this autumn at 31 cents a pound, equal to 90 percent of parity. Mandatory.

WHEAT—Supported at $1.95 a bushel, or 90 percent of parity, by loans and purchase agreements. Through July 30 a total of 62,214,861 bushels were obtaining support. Last year 343,350,033 bushels got support. Mandatory.

PHOSPHATE BOOM IN PACIFIC NORTHWEST

Three-State Area Has 80 Per Cent of the Nation's Supply

By RICHARD H. SYRING
Central Press Correspondent
POCATELLO, Id.—The 50-million-year-old remains of marine fossils are being chewed up here into fertilizer and chemicals, to create the start of a huge industrial development.

Within a 75,000 square mile radius of Pocatello, encompassing sections of Utah, Wyoming and Montana, are the largest phosphate deposits in the United States.

What is phosphate rock? That's the fossilized remains of odd-sized marine life that once inhabited the water that covered this area. Geologists describe it as the Permian age. And they conservatively place the time as 50 million years ago.

The phosphate rock, reddish grey in color, has lain close to the earth's surface, virtually undeveloped in this area until the war years. Now the scramble for the rock is on. A new electric furnace has just gone into the production of elemental phosphate.

Other plants are investigating the possibilities, for there seems to be no end to the rock. The United States Geological Survey estimates about eight billion tons of the stuff in this area, or about 80 per cent of the nation's supply. If used at current rates, the deposits should last 600 years.

THIS ROCK is 50-million-year-old fossilized remains of marine life.

THE PHOSPHATE development here affects the average American to some degree. If he is a farmer, he is assured of an almost unending supply of fertilizer, because the phosphate rock, ground and mixed with sulphuric acid, makes a potent soil production aid.

If he is an industrialist, these phosphate beds promise an almost unlimited supply of chemicals that go into soft drinks, rust-proofing, fire-proofing, textiles, metal cleaning, soaps, baking powder, detergents, oil refining, pharmaceuticals, tooth paste, self-rising flour and matches, to mention a few. Those new soapless soaps, which milady finds so wonderful in cleaning properties contain detergents from phosphates.

What makes the phosphate rock in this area so attractive is that it lies in two stratas, covered with little other rock and earth. The first strata, from six to 10 feet deep, contains rock not so strong with phosphorus pentoxide. This is considered low-grade shale and then strong enough to make good fertilizer and goes into chemicals. The stronger stuff is in the next layer. It becomes fertilizer.

Mining phosphate rock is similar to any open-pit operation. The rock is blasted and then scooped up and trucked to the rail siding. If it is the low-grade shale, it goes into an electric furnace.

The chemical reaction employed in making the elemental phosphorus is a simple one. The raw material is melted together with calcium and oxygen. It takes about 12 tons of rock to produce one ton of elemental phosphorus.

This is kept and shipped under water, since if it comes in contact with oxygen it bursts into flames. From such a hazardous state, it provides certain chemicals that go into baking powder.

To make fertilizer, these centuries-old remains are crushed and put through a 200-mesh screen (200 holes to the inch) and then into huge mixing bowls where a small per cent of sulphuric acid is added. It is then piled in warehouses and allowed to cure for 60 days. It is reground and sacked when shipment is required.

Meddling in Love Life Irks Veep

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15—(P)—Vice President Barkley is getting a little irked at all the questions about his personal life.

It isn't like the V. P. He has taken his bumps along with the rest of them and usually has managed to come up with a smile.

This time, however, there's a lady involved.

The lady is Mrs. Carlton F. Hadley, attractive St. Louis widow and mother of two daughters. Some day she may elect to become Mrs. Barkley. Then, again, she may not.

All this has caused a lot of speculation. It gets Barkley out of bed at midnight now and then to deny a rumor that he is engaged, is about to become engaged or is about to marry Mrs. Hadley.

It keeps reporters meeting the plane every time he goes somewhere out of Washington.

Now the "veep," as he calls himself, is a fun loving fellow, always quick with a joke. He can even take one on himself.

He also is a patient man, as he proved through long years of congressional battles.

But both his sense of humor and his patience with reporters, who are just about his favorite people, are wearing a little thin.

So far as his friendship with the lady is concerned, the veep would like to become just an anonymous citizen.

He doesn't want his attentions to the lady to become an embarrassment to her through frequent denials that they are going to get married.

So far as his best friends know, Barkley hasn't popped the question. That doesn't mean that he won't. And like every other swain, he isn't at all sure what the lady would say if he did.

It could even happen—but probably won't—when the veep goes out to St. Louis for a quiet little party September 23 celebrating Mrs. Hadley's 38th birthday.

Barkley said he wants to go if the work of the Senate, over which he presides, doesn't interfere.

But he warned reporters not to draw any deductions.

Taxi Driver Shot; Motive Unknown

CHICAGO, Sept. 15—(P)—A young taxicab driver died early today of four bullet wounds inflicted, he said, by a passenger who fired on him without any apparent motive.

The dead man is Stanley Stock, 23. Police said Stock still was conscious upon arrival at a hospital last night and was able to give an account of the shooting.

They quoted him as saying that his passenger suddenly whipped out a gun and shot him twice as they arrived at their destination. As Stock lay on the ground, he told police, the man shot him twice more and fled. Stock was not robbed.

Witchcraft No Crime

BOSTON, Sept. 15—(P)—The Massachusetts Legislature has been asked to reverse the convictions of 21 persons hanged 257 years ago.

The action would absolve 16 women and five men accused of witchcraft in Salem in 1692. They were hanged between June and September of that year.

Longhorn Steers In Toledo Park Being Rounded Up

TOLEDO, Sept. 15—(P)—Only one maverick steer is still on the loose in Oak Openings Park, and that means the big summer roundup of the Toledo Metropolitan Park Board is just about over.

Park board employees and some helpful neighbors found themselves cast in the unusual role of cattle wranglers several weeks ago. It happened soon after Justus M. Browning, Toledo contractor, purchased several Texas longhorns to stock his new 40-acre ranch near Oak Openings.

Five of the steers broke away and made for the tall timber of the park. Three were quickly rounded up, but the other two couldn't be found—even though the park is visited by thousands of picnickers during the summer.

Estel Wagoner, park caretaker, strung up a series of nooses in hopes of snaring the mavericks, and armed himself with a 30-30 rifle. Last Thursday at sundown he sighted one of the missing steers, fired a futile bullet at its armor-plated skull, and then chased it into one of the traps.

The animal was returned to Mr. Browning's barn, where it showed its resentment of captivity by butting over the ranch owner. And now Wagoner is ridin' the park board's range alone, keeping a sharp eye peeled for the last wanderin' whiteface.

Lions To Open Grid Season Friday Night in Columbus

One more light workout—the first of the season under the lights at Gardner Park—and the Lions of WHS will be ready to launch their 1949 football season Friday night at Linden-McKinley's gridiron in Columbus.

Already scores of the faithful fans have made plans for the rolling over the CCC Highway soon after an early supper Friday.

For Thursday night's practice, the boys of WHS are to don their blue traveling uniforms for the first time since last fall and take the field for about a half-hour session.

The next time they get into them they will be in Columbus, nervous but ready to pry the lid off the season that is loaded with question marks.

The Lions are facing an admittedly tough schedule—consider-

Football Back For Frankfort

Face McArthur Friday On New Home Gridiron

Frankfort High School is now back on the gridiron.

Resuming a full schedule for the first time since the war years, the Bobcats open against McArthur High, with the kickoff at 8 P. M. Friday, September 16.

It will be a gala occasion—an event celebrating the permanent return of Frankfort to football competition. The team played just five games last year.

Frankfort's 48-piece marching band will be joined by the 50-piece band of the visiting McArthur school.

Frankfort has backed its team to the limit. The first game of their 1949 season will be held on the new athletic field, with bleachers of 1,200-capacity and a lighting system of eighty 1500-watt lamps.

The Bobcats' backfield will carry an average of 151 pounds behind a forward wall averaging 158 pounds. McArthur's ballcarriers average 147, with their line at 163 pounds.

Coach Earl Miller's Bobcats are entered in the Mid-Buckeye League that includes Mechanicsburg, Mt. Sterling, West Jefferson, Columbus Academy, Liberty Union and Bremen.

The orange and black of the Frankfort gridirers will be carried through a nine-game schedule on the following dates:

Sept. 18—McArthur—Here
Sept. 23—Westerville—There
Sept. 30—Open
Oct. 7—Col. Academy—Here
Oct. 14—Univ. High—Here
Oct. 21—Mt. Sterling—There
Oct. 27—Waverly—Here
Nov. 4—Coalton—Here
Nov. 11—Bremen—There
Nov. 18—Mechanicsburg—There

Assistant Coaches Wayne Borst and Robert Waldren have been helping to whip the Bobcats into shape as the high school looks to a successful return to the pigskin sport.

The Board of Education had a large hand in making this possible when they purchased 10.29 acres of land for recreational purposes in June of 1948. Facilities for other sports are to be developed.

Here is Miller's tentative starting line-up for Friday:

Rain Balks Races On Grand Circuit

READING, Pa., Sept. 15—(AP)—If the weather man relents, the richest Grand Circuit meeting in the history of the Reading Fair will be held today.

A muddy track forced postponement of yesterday's card. Tuesday's program also was cancelled.

The $1,500 three-year-old trotting futurity and the $4,500 three-year old pacing futurity were rescheduled today and will be run off along with the $12,000 two-year old pacing futurity.

The three stakes plus three other events will have a total value of $31,200.

ed one of the toughest in years—with a green and untried squad.

Two new schools have been added and one of the traditional rivals has been subtracted. The new foes will come here from Cincinnati Hughes and Dayton Stivers high schools. Both are big schools and always field top-flight sports outfits. Missing from the slate are Hillsboro's Indians, dropped last year for a "cooling off" period after an argument between the school athletic boards over playing conditions and sportsmanship.

For a time, the severance of relations between Washington C. H. and Hillsboro schools, threatened the old South Central Ohio League. But, an agreement was reached for the "cooling off" period and the loop was saved.

Here is the complete schedule: Games at Home

Jackson Sept. 23.
Cincinnati Hughes Sept. 30
Portsmouth East Oct. 14
Wilmingon (SCO) Oct. 21
Dayton Stivers Nov. 18
Games away from Home
Linden-McKinley Sept. 16
Greenfield Oct. 7
London Oct. 28
Bexley Nov. 4
Circleville Nov. 11

The Lions will open the season against a team they have met but once before. The WHS outfit won that game 33 to 6 at Gardner Park here last year.

Linden-McKinley's team is rated as a good one, but it is not expected to prove the best the Lions will meet. The outcome of Friday night's game remains strictly anyone's guess.

Fierce Attack In Tenth Wins For Graziano

NEW YORK, Sept. 15—(AP)—The Rock is back on the victory road. Not the Rocky Graziano of old but still the most exciting fighter to watch in the ring today.

For nine rounds against Charlie Fusari in the Polo Grounds last night, it looked like the Rock was through. He was trailing on every scorecard and it seemed only a tenth round knockout could save him.

Then it happened—the explosive burst that the crowd of 31,092 had been waiting for all night.

A left hook suddenly connected and Fusari reeled from mid-ring to the ropes. A right, then another, and then a rain of blows that draped Fusari over the ropes and then to the floor for a count of nine.

Like a tiger smelling blood, Rocky tore after Fusari. He pinned him in a corner, held his head in place with his left hand, and sledge-hammered him with his right.

The crowd was on its feet, roaring for the kill. It was like a bullfight with the spectators yelling for the fatal sword thrust. But referee Ruby Goldstein had seen enough. He pulled the snarling Graziano from his victim and declared the Rock the victor at 2:04 of the last round.

Defending Champs Tourney Favorites

YOUNGSTOWN, Sept. 15—(AP)—New York, the defending champion, still was the top heavy favorite today to win the National Amateur Baseball Federation tournament.

The New Yorkers administered a 12 to 3 licking to Springfield, Mass. last night and thus became the only undefeated team remaining in the double elimination contest.

The two teams were to meet again this afternoon while Birmingham, Ala., and Akron, O., tangle in night encounter.

Tom Casey, 20-year-old New York University student, fanned 20 men in pitching the New York champions to victory. Ale Mele and George Cheverko helped him out with homers.

In other contests, Akron eased Cleveland out of the race with a 5-2 win and Birmingham, erased Pittsburgh with a 10-1 victory.

Tom Porosky homered for Akron with one on and Akron pitcher Bob Nash, a Toledo University star, doubled in a run.

Bill Rigdon slammed two home-runs for Birmingham, one with two on in the second inning. Manuel Dorsky also homered with two men on in that frame.

Skip Doyle Shines In Squad Game

COLUMBUS, Sept. 15—(AP)—Sophomore Skip Doyle of Rochester, Pa., was the standout among Ohio State's football newcomers yesterday in a first-and-second-team scrimmage in which veterans played a predominant role.

Others of the heralded sophomore crop took back seats while such seasoned performers as Jimmy Clark, Jerry Krall, Curly Morrison and Rod Swinehart stole the show in the 80-minute workout.

For the record, the "white" squad—the first stringers—beat the "red" eleven, 20-14. But since the lineup was shuffled freely both from the bench and across the scrimmage line, the score didn't mean much.

Doyle, at left half, picked up five yards his first try, 10 the next, and only seconds later set up the second "red" touchdown by a 28-yard scoot over his own right tackle.

Dick Schnitker, Buck basketball captain making his debut in an Ohio State football uniform, got in some work on calisthenics and conditioning yesterday. He also stayed after the scrimmage and got off some good punts. He was a first-rate high school kicker.

Proximity Favorite In $25,000 Stake

WESTBURY, N. Y., Sept. 15—(AP)—Proximity rules a strong favorite over nine other entrants in tonight's $25,000 American trotting championship at Roosevelt Raceway.

The seven-year-old mare owned by Ralph and Gordon Verhurst of Victor, N. Y., is expected to go postward at even money or possibly shorter odds. She has won all but one of her 19 starts this year and seeks to add the winner's share of $11,250 to her earnings of $144,954.

Pitted against Proximity in the one mile event are Demon Hanover, which led the renowned mare home in the $50,000 Roosevelt two-mile trot here last Aug. 25; Rodney, Chris Spencer, Chesterton, Charity Dean, David Spencer, Buster Volo, Dutch Harbor, and Vita Lee.

Millbrook Is Winner Of Westbury Feature

WESTBURY, N. Y., Sept. 15—(AP)—Millbrook, a 7-to-2 chance, captured the featured Mineola pace last night at Roosevelt Raceway, winning by a length over Oxheart in 2:04 4-5.

Oxheart, an outsider at 17-1, surprised to return $1430 for place. Captain Eddie finished third.

Dodgers Keep in Race As Reds Beaten Again

By JOE REICHLER
(By The Associated Press)
The Brooklyn Dodgers must be wondering today just what must they do to catch the high flying St. Louis Cardinals?

Since the first of the month, the Brooks have piled up 11 victories in 13 tries, a true championship gait.

And just how much yardage did they pick up on the Redbirds during that torrid stretch drive? Not a foot. While the Dodgers were polishing off Boston, New York and Cincinnati, the Cards duplicated the Dodgers' feat by winning 11 of their last 13 skirmishes.

So as the two perennial rivals swing into the final two weeks of the blistering National League campaign, the Cards still cling to the game and a half edge they held last Sept. 1.

The Dodgers drew first blood yesterday, knocking off their favorite playmates, the Cincinnati Reds, 4-2, in an afternoon tussle. That narrowed the Cards' edge to one game.

But the Giants proved easy prey for the Redbirds, bowing under a 9-3 lacing as Harry (The Cat) Brecheen continued his nightly prowl with a 10-hit effort. Harry, a very effective arclight hurler, notched his seventh triumph in 10 lamplight decisions.

In the American League, the Yankees advanced a couple of more strides toward their 16th championship, by sweeping both ends of a double bill for the hapless St. Louis Browns, 2-0 and 13-7. The sweep enabled the Bronx Bombers to increase their first place lead over Boston to three full games, despite the Red Sox' 1-0 victory over Detroit.

Cleveland virtually eliminated itself by dropping a 2-1 decision to the Philadelphia Athletics as rookie Bobby Shantz beat Bobby Feller.

In other games, the Chicago White Sox dumped the Washington Senators, 8-1; Philadelphia's Phillies whipped the Pittsburgh Pirates, 12-4, and the Chicago Cubs outslugged the Boston Braves, 8-7.

A crowd of 10,712 damp fans sat through a steady rain which held up the Card-Giant game for one hour and 45 minutes. But they were rewarded at the end. The Redbirds collected a dozen hits off three Giant hurlers with Stan Musial once again taking the most active role.

The Cardinal slugger slammed a bases-loaded triple, and added a couple of singles to account for six runs. He drove in four and scored two. Monte Kennedy absorbed the brunt of the attack to be charged with his 13th setback. It was the 13th win for Brecheen.

Reese Rough On Reds

Pee Wee Reese, Brooklyn captain and shortstop, was the big gun in the Dodgers victory. Back in the lineup after missing one game because of a bruised elbow, Reese led the attack against Howie Fox of the Reds, with a double and single. Each blow began a scoring spree.

The Reds can settle down now to the task of trying to stay out of the National League cellar—and once again that has become a very serious job.

Through six straight games the seventh-place Redlegs have been in the top baseball headlines—not because of their own doings, of course—but because they were taking on the pennant contending St. Louis Cardinals and the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The Cards came and left with three victories in four games. The Dodgers left yesterday after winning both of their tilts with the Cincinnatians.

And those five defeats in six contests left the Reds only a game and a half ahead of the last place Chicago Cubs.

Most of the Cincinnati offense Wednesday was centered in Virgil Stalcup who got two singles and a double in four trips to the plate.

Fox lasted until the fifth, when the Dodgers got their last two runs, and he was followed to the mound by Johnny Vander Meer and Ewell Blackwell. Blackwell's two-inning stint was his third pitching appearance in as many games.

Lefty Ed Lopat and Vic Raschi turned in the Yankee victories. Lopat had plenty of opposition from Al Papai, a knuckleball righthander, in the opener, but came through with his best performance of the season, to gain his 14th triumph with a four-hitter. An error by outfielder Roy Shievers led to both New York

Don Gibson Gets Certificate For Catching 5-pound Bass

If there's a prouder man in town today than Don Gibson he'd be hard to find.

For, Gibson has just come back from a fishing expedition into Canada not only with some tall stories about the big fish he caught, but also with a very official appearing certificate to back up at least one of them.

Besides, he has an emblem in the form of a maple leaf showing that he is a member of the "Order of Kawartha Angler" for 1949. The lettering is embroidered in red on a gold satin background edged with green felt.

The membership certificate tallies in the second inning.

Raschi had the benefit of a 15-hit attack against six Brownie fingers in the nightcap.

Pitcher Ellis Kinder and slugger Ted Williams teamed up to give the Red Sox their hard-earned victory. Kinder allowed six hits in notching his 20th triumph, the last ten of them in succession. Williams accounted for the only run with a homer in the sixth, his 38th. It was the last of four hits yielded by loser Hal Newhouser.

Ralph Kined blasted his 49th home run for Pittsburgh, but could not prevent the Phils from winning.

Garringer almost made the select order when he caught a ball that weighed a quarter of a pound under the minimum for membership.

Helfrich pulled in the biggest fish, an eight-pound wall-eye the Kawartha Angler with a wall-pike. But, to make the Order of eye a 15-pounder is necessary.

Gibson said he expected to take a lot of ribbing from his friends on the next meeting of the Lions Club. But, he added, he didn't care because he was ready to produce the official evidence to back them up.

Previously, Gibson had caught a 4 1-2 pound bass, but that was half a pound short of the Kawartha Order requirements.

Garringer almost made the select order when he caught a ball that weighed a quarter of a pound under the minimum for membership.

Price Spreads To Be Studied

Probe To Center On Farm Products

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14—(AP)—Chairman Gillette (D-Ia) of a Senate agricultural subcommittee said today the group will investigate the "spread" between the cost of farm products and the prices paid by the housewife.

He made this comment after Senator Young (R-ND) asked if it was "not in the province of this committee" to investigate the price of bread.

Young said he is a wheat farmer himself and does not understand why "bread prices do not drop when the price of wheat has dropped by a third since last year."

Gillette said there is an "unconscionable spread" between the price the farmer gets and what stores charge for farm products. He noted he had recently paid 95 cents a dozen for eggs "while the support price is only 35 cents a dozen."

The subcommittee, currently investigating surpluses of fats and oils, has under consideration legislation that would require a certain minimum of shortening to be used in bakery goods and require that the ingredients be labeled.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

GRADUALLY Terry's tension relaxed. A smile spoke of the Austin house, asking her if she still owned it, and he told her it was still owned by "Lovell," the place he ever saw, he told her. Terry answered, "No, I have no property in Central America now," he nodded and reflected, "What would you do with it, you and Chris could hardly occupy half a dozen homes?" He spoke also of her father's death, saying, "I was sorry to read of it. He was a remarkable man." But all this was in the first few days and after that he said nothing more. So, she thought, I was imagining things.

August was sun and fog, the smell of salt marshes, long stretches of sand and the gulls crying. August was wild flowers in the wind, a golden moon and stars over the water; August was clambakes and picnics, and the village alive with summer guests. August was fishing and swimming and cocktails on the porch in the evening. August, if you thought about it, was almost perfect, with Charlotte for friendship and Chris for companionship and love. But the clatter of Amnelly's typewriter cut sharply through the long lazy days, during which the Davidson girls came and went, noisy, healthy and loving, and the spaniels tracked wet sand into the house and on the furniture and no one complained, not even when they brought in a dead fish or two.

Kent arrived for a weekend, and went away again; people came to call or to spend a day, the girls had school friends to share their big bare room, with its four built-in bunks and ship's clock. And on Saturday nights they went to the hotel dance.

Amnelly too. He liked resort hotels, he said, when he didn't live in them, the pretty women, the men who appeared weekends, the honeymooners, the kids. He liked to dance, and meticulously divided his time between Charlotte, her tall girls and Terry.

Just before Labor Day, "You avoid me," he told Terry, as they danced to a good swing band on a crowded floor. It was very warm, and people crowded the porches, the doors stood wide and the French windows. Chris went by with Charlotte, his fair head bent, his mouth smiling.

"Why should I?" "I don't know. Are you an unforgiving person? Yet, what was there to forgive? You must have refused a hundred men, bent upon establishing a claim to your lovely person and your father's money."

She said, "I'd forgotten your prospecting, Roger."

"Good. Of course, that's why you married Russell. He's very attractive, by the way. He is the logical candidate, the Prince Charming, with good looks to match your own, and dollar for dollar as well." "Really, Roger, this is in very bad taste."

"Sorry." He was silent a moment and then, "Do you know a man named Luis Lopez?" he asked.

"I don't think so." Her heart shook with premonition. "It's a common name," she said.

"He doesn't know you. But he knew your father. I met Lopez in Mexico toward the end of my unsatisfactory honeymoon last spring."

"Well?" she asked coolly.

"He told me about your father's death. It seems that members of his family lost a good deal in the crash of that plane." He looked at her closely. "You're very white, Terry, suppose we go out on the porch?"

Chris and Charlotte saw them leave and Chris said, "What's up, I wonder? She'd never leave lights and people of her own free will with our mutual friend."

"It's warm in here," Charlotte suggested.

"Quite. Shall we join my wife?" he asked.

But someone cut in, so Chris went off by himself to look for Terry. He did not see her on the porch, which was crowded.

They had walked across a lawn, down a flight of steps to the dock, and now stood there looking into the glittering water. A boy and girl rose from a bench and hurried away, annoyed at the intrusion. The little waves lapped at the pilings, someone was playing a guitar in a boat far out, and from the hotel they could hear blurred voices, laughter, and the sound of music.

Roger said, "I brought you here to say, more power to you. You pulled it off. I take it people don't know."

She said resolutely, "No; with the exception of one very close friend."

"Charlotte?" "No."

"And Chris?" "Naturally, Chris."

He said musingly, "It's a remarkable story; the rise and fall of a man like Mark Austin. I have much of the background, fortunately. It did not occur to me to write it until I saw you again."

I admit I wasn't particularly interested in Lopez's cries of vengeance and easy Latin tears. He was quite high on tequila most of the time I was with him. But when I encountered you, I began to remember your father, yourself, the way you lived, and the singular arrogance that permeated all your kindnesses."

She thought, I felt it, I knew it, and was glad that the fear was no longer nebulous.

She said, "No one would print it."

"Why not? Mark Austin was a well-known man, a contemporary history figure. It beats me why the story hasn't been broadcast, or the rumors at least. I suppose the various governments were not anxious for the publicity, there were too many people involved. So, a plane crashed, a man died, his daughter sold her holdings and went away."

"I had none to sell."

"A euphemism. Lopez was delighted at that. Unless, he said, she managed to cache some of her this-and-that father's illegitimate gains in the States. A blunt man, Lopez, but speaking in cliches."

"I didn't manage."

He said, "I wonder how much it would be worth to your husband to keep this out of print? It would make a colorful magazine article. The facts could all be checked. No libel suits could ensue. It would be the truth. I still have the notes I made when I visited you and could easily amplify them. The rest is easy; everyone knows Mark Austin's beginnings and a great many know his end."

"What do you mean, how much would it be worth?"

"Russell," he said casually, "is a rich man." Then he laughed. "I am not a blackmailer, Terry, in the accepted sense. I make a good enough living now, and am likely to make more. Apart from having to pay two women alimony and a possible third coming up, I have very little need for money. But I would enjoy a change of scene after my book is written. A trip to the islands, for instance."

She said evenly, "Chris has already asked you."

"He wants you to ask me, I mean it. I might do some articles with the Hawaiian background; also it would give me a setting for a mystery. Murder on Naniola—a good title."

They heard footsteps and turned. Chris came toward them, tossing his cigarette in a burning arc into the water.

"Hi, you two," he said cheerfully, "does this call for jealousy or a drink?"

His tone was light and even but he came close to Terry and put his arm around her. And Roger said, "A drink, certainly. I'm afraid you have no cause for jealousy, Chris. You're very fortunate. We were just talking about Central America, and Hawaii."

Terry felt Chris's hand grow heavier on her shoulder.

"Hawaii?" "You say it well. If I tried for that faint v sound I would merely seem affected. Yes, I have promised Terry I'll come out this autumn. If Kent doesn't give me sufficient advance I'll work my way across."

"That's fine," said Chris. "We'll be on the dock waiting, with songs and garlands. Let's have that drink. I think Charlotte is about ready to go home."

of the Continental Baking Co., New York; Daniel J. Uhrig, vice president of the Purity Bakeries Corp., Chicago; and R. T. Bohn, representing the General Baking Co., New York, testified today in opposition to the proposal.

Both Stritzinger and Uhrig asserted that labor and other costs have risen greatly and that these added costs prevent a decrease in bread prices.

All three witnesses said their firms are not using synthetic shortening.

Hungary Fugitive Is Safe in America

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Sept. 15—(AP)—Steve Thuransky, who fled from Hungary in 1947, has been notified he will be tried in Absentia in Budapest on a charge of "inciting against the democratic order of Hungary."

Said Thuransky, who has made his home here since his escape: "The more things the so-called government in Hungary charges me with the better I feel."

Now a naturalized citizen, Thuransky was a Hungarian revolutionary in the days of Bela Kun. He was notified by the state department yesterday of the pending trial.

Columbus Bus Co. Threatens 'Strike'

COLUMBUS, Sept. 15—(AP)—Columbus city officials were studying today their course of action on a utility firm's threat to pull all its buses off Columbus streets unless a nickel fare ordinance is repealed.

The threat came in a letter yesterday to Mayor James A. Rhodes from John B. Poston, president of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co.

The ordinance continuing the nickel fare (five tickets for 25 cents, six cents cash) was passed a week ago by city council. The ordinance has been placed on the Nov. 8 ballot for a decision by the city's voters.

In a companion ordinance, also on the November ballot, council ordered C. & S. O. E. to reduce its residential electric power rate by 27 percent.

Leaders Here To Try To Collect Carload Of Corn

Rev. Allan Caley Plans To Organize Fayette County for CROP

Rev. Allan W. Caley, pastor of the Grace Methodist Church here, said another effort will be made in the near future to organize Fayette County for the purpose of collecting at least one car of corn for the Christian Rural Overseas Program (CROP).

Rev. and Mrs. Caley returned Wednesday from a big luncheon, held in Columbus for more than 100 Ohio leaders of CROP.

The CROP leaders got a sample of their own medicine when they were fed food sent by CROP to refugees overseas.

The menu included such items as cooked cereal, dried milk and corn syrup. Luxury foods included bread, a spread, fruit cocktail and coffee.

Rev. Caley said the food "was filling and of good quality" but he added that it would get tiresome as a steady menu.

Program Successful

Reports as to how successful the program for the refugees has been has inspired Rev. Caley to attempt to get a corn contribution from Fayette County.

CROP, supported by the Catholic Rural Life, Church World Service, Inc. and the Lutheran World Relief, Inc. ships and distributes food to needy Europeans and Asiatics through church organization abroad.

Frank N. Farnsworth, state CROP chairman, said he hopes that a goal of $400,000 worth of food would be ready for shipment this fall. Last year's cash and farm crops from Ohio amounted to more than $300,000.

Farnsworth said more than $32,000 in cash and four carloads of corn has already been contributed by Ohioans to help towards the goal this year.

Besides Farnsworth, other speakers on the CROP program Wednesday included the following persons.

Jan Vitans, former refugee from Latvia; Rev. John H. Deutschlander, relief food administrator from the Lutheran Church who has just returned from the American Sector of Berlin.

Dean L. L. Rummel, of the College of Agriculture, Ohio State University; Edwin T. Randall, Community Services Director, Radio Station WRFD, Worthington.

A recording of the talks will be broadcast over radio station WRFD at 3:15 p.m. Friday, it was announced.

He is survived by his wife, Susan Davis Spurlock, two daughters, Mrs. Grace Hedges and Mrs. Hazel Brannon and a son, Esty Spurlock, all of Xenia.

He also leaves a stepdaughter, Miss Barbara Lou, at home, ten grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 P. M. Saturday at the Littleton Funeral Home in Sabina, with Rev. Ernest Beverley of Washington C. H. in charge.

Burial will be in White Oak Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home at any time.

Final Plans Set For Scout Event

Nat'l. Roll Call At Memorial Hall Soon

Final arrangements were made at the Boy Scout Round Table meeting Wednesday night for the National Roll Call to be held at Memorial Hall at 7:30 P. M., September 26.

Raymond Graft, field scout executive, reported that the National Executive Board, acting on the recommendation of the National Committee on Boy Scouting, has eliminated the board of review for merit badges.

The Boy Scout growth membership quota was also set for every scout unit in Fayette County.

All scouts over 14 years of age will be presented with a new "Exploring" registration card at the September 26 meeting.

The program of the National Roll Call will be in three parts:

1. Every scout's name will be called, to check the roster of each unit in the county, including cub scouts.

2. An analysis of each unit's progress toward its "Crusade" goal.

3. The national uniform inspection.

Scoutmasters here were urged to turn in their board of review sheets to the council office so that they will be available for the Court of Honor to be held after the roll call.

Present at the meeting in the Chamber of Commerce offices were: Paul Hirt, scoutmaster, Troop 32; Maurice Hopkins, scoutmaster, Troop 112; Robert Bachelor, scoutmaster, Troop 152; Kenneth Chaney, cubmaster, Pack 20; Earle Henderson, troop committeeman, Troop 32; Leo Fisher, district commissioner and Graft, field scout executive for Madison, Fayette and Highland counties.

Squirrel Season Opens in County

Squirrel hunters in Fayette County got little cooperation from the weather Thursday, opening day of the squirrel season.

Cloudy weather kept the number of hunters down to a few hardy souls, too eager to be held down by the threat of a cold rain.

The dampness is favored by the wise squirrel hunter, who depends upon it to keep the underbrush from crackling and warning the quarry.

Irvin Patrick, game protector for Fayette County, said the season will run through September 30. The daily bag limit is four and the possession limit four. Hunting hours extend from daylight to dark.

Hunters are asked again to use caution and are warned to wear a bright red cap or red cloth sewn to their jacket for their own safety.

City Council Votes Purchase Of A New Truck

Water Mains to Be Extended and New Light Installed

Absence of City Manager W. W. Hill, who is assisting in the Hawkins' murder case at Hillsboro and two members of council, Chairman R. H. Sites and Roy Baughn, Wednesday night, resulted in a shorter session than usual, with several ordinances carried over until the next meeting.

Vice-Chairman Richard R. Willis presided over the session.

Installation of a new street light on Harrison Street was authorized. The light is to be 100 candle power, aerial type.

Extension of a two inch water main on Maple Street and another on Harrison Street were authorized.

Chairman Willis asked that a report be made when the installations are completed.

The report of Police Court Justice Robert H. Sites, for the month of August was read, and showed total collections of $2990 for the month, divided as follows: 88 city cases, $2352.70; 19 state patrol cases, $390.20; county cases brought in $33.70; 26 traffic tickets, $26 and collected from previous month's fines $187.40.

The bid of $1300 in a trade-in proposal for an International truck, made by the H. H. Denton Implement Store, was accepted, and the truck will be added to the city's rolling stock.

GOP Chairwomen Formulate Plans

Mrs. Donna Zimmerman, Fayette County chairwoman of the Republican executive committee, attended a state-wide meeting of county chairwomen held at the Neil House in Columbus, and participated in making plans for the coming political campaign in Ohio.

They mapped a "grass roots, door-bell-ringing" program for the 1950 Republican campaign. They held panel discussions on party structure, organization, Ohio's recently advised election laws, methods of canvassing and polling precincts, and procedure for getting out the vote on election day.

State GOP Chairman Ray Bliss told the chairwomen: "You are the sales manager in your counties and must develop a sales organization to sell the candidates to the voters."

The Federated Democratic Women of Ohio open their annual two-day convention in Columbus Friday.

Sewage Rates To Be Boosted On October 1

Increase Charge Is Necessary Due To New Construction

Washington C. H. residents, when they receive their sewage disposal service statements for the last quarter of 1949, about October 1, will find the new rate increases in effect, which includes a minimum of $2 per quarter, for ordinary homes, instead of $1.40 per quarter.

Commercial rates have been upped considerably in the ordinance adopted by city council during the summer. Most of the residents will find that the rates are similar to those originally charged when the sewage disposal plant was built. A few years after the plant was placed in operation the rates were lowered, and this action resulted in the sewage disposal plant being operated on a close, or losing basis in recent years.

With the building of the secondary treatment plant, now under way, at a cost of upward of $80,000, and additional bond issue, as well as increased cost of operation, council found the higher rates necessary to pay off the bond issue and operate the plant.

City Auditor, Miss Marie Melvin, said Thursday that statements for October, November and December service, which reflect the increased rates, will be mailed out about Sept. 30.

Sound-Track Receivers Are Missed Here

There are headaches in any business but Ralph D. Brown, manager of the CCC Drive-In Theater has his own peculiar brand.

It seems that Brown has found several receivers which theater patrons use in their cars while watching the movies missing over the last few months.

As the number has steadily increased, Brown has gotten a little more concerned. He's reported the loss to Sheriff Orland Hays.

Brown says each receiver costs approximately $10 apiece. He estimates that he's had about $160 worth of them either stolen or accidentally hauled away.

Apparently Drive-In theaters elsewhere have been having the same difficulties that Brown reports.

Recently the Cincinnati Enquirer carried a story about a 23-year-old Cincinnati youth who was caught with a stolen sound-track receiver in his car and sentenced to jail for 30 days and fined $150 and costs.

He was found guilty of stealing the receiver from a drive-in near Hamilton.

Driver Posts $25 For His Appearance

When police arrested Earl J. Hilliard, of Pittsburgh, Pa., as his big truck was roaring through the city, they found the truck, like many others stopped here recently, was equipped with a straight line exhaust, which permitted the roar of the motor to go unmuffled. Hilliard posted $25 bond for his appearance in police court.

He was the seventh or eighth driver arrested here in a week under the anti-noise ordinance, and several of the trucks were found to be almost wholly without mufflers.

To Change Parking After Resurfacing

Although council many months ago passed an ordinance for parallel parking on Fayette Street from East Street to Temple Street, following recommendations by the state highway department, the change will not be made until after Fayette Street is resurfaced from Court Street to Temple in the resurfacing program, contract for which was let recently.

When the change is made, it will necessitate moving all of the parking meters on Fayette Street, and spacing them for parallel parking instead of head-in parking.

Incidentally it will materially reduce the number of parking meters, but just where they will be placed in the uptown area still without parking meters, has not been announced.
